ARMY AND NAVY BETRAY THE THRONE AND BOMBARD PALACE OF RULER.

WARSHIPS FIRE ON FLAG OF COUNTRY AND THE ROYAL STANDARD IS DOWN.

COMMUNICATION WITH CAPITAL EXCEPT BY WIRELESS IS CUT OFF.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 5.—According to the Daily Mail, a revolution broke out in Lisbon today.

The dispatch adds that King Manuel is a prisoner, that street fighting has occurred, that the warships are bombarding the palace and that all communication with the capital is cut off.

The Standard correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company confirms the report of a revolution in Portugal, and adds that the rebels have captured the palace.

The Eastern Telegraph Company announced this afternoon the receipt from its station at Carcavellos, eleven miles from Lisbon, of a message that all communication with the capital was interrupted.

The daily mail prints its report of the revolution without a date line, and it may be based upon a wireless dispatch, said to have been received by the Paris Matin, reading:

"A revolution has broken out in Lisbon and warships are now bombarding the capital. The army and navy are supporting the revolutionaries."

A Portuguese merchant in London says he received news of a plot in Lisbon on Monday. The price of Portugese bonds dropped heavily on the stock exchange here yesterday.

Interstate Commerce Commission Cancels Proposed New Tariffs Pending Investigation.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Advances in transcontinental freight charges varying from five to ten cents a hundred pounds from points of eastern origin to Pacific Coast terminals were suspended, today, by the Interstate Commerce Commission until Feb. 6, 1911, pending an inquiry by the Commission into their reasonableness.

The order of suspension affects several hundred interstate carriers operating east of the Rocky Mountains.

The tariffs filed with the Commission were to have become effective on Oct. 10. They apply to all commodity and class freight on west-bound shipments to the Pacific Coast, including lumber, cement and furniture.

No time has yet been fixed for a hearing as to the reasonableness of the proposed rates, but it will be held probably late in November or December.

INFECTION.

PLAGUE AT NEW YORK; TWO DIE OF CHOLERA.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The steamer Sant Anna from French and Italian ports, now detained at quarantine, had a case of cholera aboard.

The victim, a man in the steerage, died Sept. 25, and was buried at sea. Two other cases of intestinal trouble are under observation.

Meanwhile, the Sant Anna, carrying 224 first cabin passengers, some of them prominent Americans, and 1073 in the steerage, is held as a possible cholera carrier, pending further investigation.

Announcement of the foregoing was made tonight by Dr. A. H. Doty, health officer of the port. In addition to the Sant Anna, he has, as a precaution, detained at quarantine the steamer Moltke from Genoa and Naples ,and the steamer Virginia, from Naples.

Tomorrow he will hold a conference with Dr. Walter Wayman, surgeon-general of the United States Marine Hospital service. They will map out a campaign of protection.

Dr. Doty's statement discloses that not only did a cholera patient die aboard the Sant Anna, but that a steerage, "suspicious case" removed from the steamer Germania Sept. 26, subsequently died. Examination, says Dr. Doty, shows that this was a case of cholera.

Dr. Doty's statement was issued after an examination of the Sant Anna, which arrived last night from Versailles, Naples and Palermo. The ship's surgeon's report of the death, says it was gastro-intestinal affection.

DIES OF CHOLERA.

Dr. Doty, commenting on the case, said: "The history of the case indicates clearly that the man died of cholera. No other cases have developed on the voyage, but there are two cases of intestinal trouble among the steerage passengers at present. Cultures have been taken in these cases and the bacteriological examination thus far shows no evidence of cholera. The final result will be ready tomorrow morning. The inspection of the Sant Anna shows that everything has been done on ship board to prevent the spread of the disease.

"The Moltke, which also arrived last night from Genoa and Naples, have on board one suspicious case, a steerage passenger; but no action will be taken with the vessel until the result of the bacteriological examination is known. The Sant Anna is known as a possible cholera carrier, and in any event passengers who have been exposed to the patients will be transferred to Hoffman Island.

"On Sept. 26 the steamer eGrmania arrived from Marseilles and Naples with an unusually good medical report. The affidavit of the master and surgeon showed no deaths in transit, no cases of infectious disease, and no suspicious cases; there was no case of any nature in the ship's hospital, and a special report by the surgeon showed there was no intestinal troubles. But for the last three or four months, as an extreme precaution, I have had removed from all steamers from Mediterranean ports all steerage passengers who have applied for treatment during the voyage in order that obscure or irregular cases of cholera may be detected.

GREEK SQUCCUMBS TO PLAGUE.

"Six of the passengers on the Germania, reported on the surgeon's journal as having applied for treatment for minor troubles, but who were well on arrival, were removed to Swineburne Island. Two days one of this group, a Greek, was given treatment. Twenty-four hours later this patient was in a condition of collapse, and died in twelve hours.

"Although the autopsy showed no evidence of cholera, examinations of the secretions of the intestinal tract showed the presence of suspicious organisms. Specimens were sent to Dr. W. H. Park, of the Health Department of this city, and to Dr. Anderson, bacteriologist of the United States Marine Hospital service. Their examinations indicated the patient died from cholera.

"This is a practical demonstration of what is known as a 'cholera carrier,' that is, persons may carry organisms of the disease without any symptoms to indicate its presence."

SAD END.

THIRTY-SEVEN DIE IN AWFUL TROLLEY CRASH.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

STAUNTON (Ill.) Oct. 4.—Thirty-seven persons were killed, and from sixteen to twenty-five were injured in a collision on the Illinois Traction System, two miles north of here late today.

At least three of the injured probably will die.

Reports from the wreck conflict. Some statements make the number of injured as high as fifty. Officials say this is excessive.

The collision was between local train No. 14, north bound, and an excursion train, No. 73, loaded with passengers, on their way to view the parade of the Veiled Prophet at St. Louis.

ORDERS ARE DISREGARDED.

The accident apparently was due to the disregard of orders by the crew of train No. 14, in charge of M. A. Leonard, conductor, and John Llerman, of Staunton, meterman.

Train No. 14 had orders to pass train No. 73 at Staunton. The latter train was running in two sections, and the orders given to No. 14 were explicit that it was to wait for both sections.

The first section of No. 73 had passed, when the crew of No. 14 pulled out on the main track and started north. At Dickerson's curve, a sharp bend, two miles from here, the trains met. Hills rise north and south of the curve. Train No. 14 and the second section of No. 73, both on the down grade, were making forty miles an hour when they met at the sharpest part of the curve.

CREWS JUMP; PASSENGERS DIE.

Confronted with death, the crews of both trains set the brakes and jumped for their lives. All escaped without serious injury. None of the passengers had a chance for their life.

The smash-up followed immediately upon the cries of warning of the conductors and motormen as they jumped. The cars came together with a terrific crash, and both were entirely demolished, being piled in one huge mass of wreckage.

It is not known if any passenger escaped uninjured. As quickly as possible aid was summoned from Springfield, and special cars were started for the wreck. Other cars were sent north from Granite City and took many of the injured to hospitals in that town. A car containing twenty-nine bodies was sent to Carlinville, where they were placed in an undertaking establishment.

The work of unearthing the dead was continued.

OFFICIAL MAKES STATEMENT.

General Manager Chubbuck, of the traction company, who was in Peoria when news of the wreck was received, started at once for the scene. When passing through Springfield, he said:

"Reports from the wreck are meager and unsatisfactory. The best information I have shows thirty-seven have been killed, and that twenty-nine of the dead are now at Carlinville. I have received various estimates of the number of wounded, ranging from sixteen to fifty ,but feel assured that the list of injured will be nearer the smaller figures.

"I am unable to discuss the cause of the wreck. I have received no authentic information regarding it. All I know is that the north-bound train struck the second section of the south-bound train."

Within a few minutes after the collision

THE PATHETIC DEAD.

BODIES OF FIFTEEN NOW OUT OF RUINS.

Seven more fragments of human bodies were found yesterday in the ruins. All these lay at the base of the freight elevator shaft, heaped together. There was evidently a rush for this shaft, and the fire caught the struggling victims as they were trying to find a way down from the composing room floor. The complete list of the remains recovered to date is as follows:

9:15 Saturday night: J. Wesley Reaves, positive identification.
3 a. m. Sunday: Body believed to be that of Harry L. Crane.
3:15: Thigh and torso of unidentified body.
7:30: Unidentified body practically complete.
3 p. m.: Pelvis believed to belong to body of Howard Courdaway.
9:15 p. m.: Single rib, no identification.
8:30 a. m. Monday: Trunk of unidentified body.
11:10 Tuesday: Trunk, thought to be that of Caress or Johnson.
11:55: Body of John Howard, positively identified by contents of pockets.
12:30 p. m.: Three bodies, one undoubtedly that of Tunstall.
2:30 p. m.: Portion of trunk, believed to be part of corpse previously found.
6:16 p. m.: Unidentified body, practically complete.
12:20 a. m. Wednesday: Body of Charles Haggerty.

In double, nine-hour, daily shifts of 100 and more men each, the work of rescuing the victims of The Times Building dynamite and fire horror is going steadily forward, though with a slowness that is agonizing to those who watch and wait outside the lines. But even those who have stood there practically without intermission through days of anguished waiting for the first word of their loved ones, have nothing but praise for the men under whose direction the work has been done.

At their head and in general charge of the task of clearing away the ruins is William M. Humphreys, of The Board of Public Works. Almost from the hour of the disaster Mr. Humphreys has been upon the scene from early in the morning until late at night, and it is to his tireless and undivided efforts that the progress to date is chiefly due.

Of his able lieutenants none is deserving of greater credit than W. H. Laws, chief outside deputy of the street department, who has from the first directed the labors of the city workmen in the pit where most of the bodies have been found. No less active have been Superintendent of Buildings Backus and Street Inspector Mather. With the minimum intervals for rest and food, these men have toiled incessantly to hasten the sorrowful task of delivering the wreckage of its dead—one which, as the work progresses, increases in horror day by day.

The prediction made by those who escaped from the composing room that the bodies of their comrades would nearly all be found near the base of the elevator shaft, received sad verification yesterday. With the aid of a small improvised derrick the wrecked linotype machinery was lifted to one side in the pit and, within three hours, five and possibly six bodies had been dug from the mountain of debris beneath.

The first was found at 11:10 a. m., a headless, limbless, blackened trunk buried toward the far end of the room. Though there is no possibility of ever directly identifying it, the probabilities are that it is the body of Eugene Caress or of Don E. Johnson, both of whom were large and heavy men.

LONG, SAD VIGIL ENDS.

Three-quarters of an hour later, the long vigil of John Howard, Jr., who had waited at the lines since Saturday for news of his father, was pitifully rewarded by the finding of Howard's body. It was lying almost against the wall at the north end of the pit, about fifteen feet from the Broadway pavement. A huge mass of sheet iron that had fallen upon him had seemingly protected the body in some measure from the cremating action of the flames, for with the exception of portions of the left arm it was practically whole. Bits of clothing, including the waistband of a pair of overalls, still adhered to the charred flesh and in the pockets were articles which enabled the grief-stricken son to positively identify the remains of his father. A bunch of keys, two pocket knives and a small magnifying glass in a brass case were found, all of which John Howard was known to have been carrying on the day of his death.

Immediately at the base of the elevator, where they had evidently struggled during the few terrible minutes between the explosion and the collapse from fire of the composing room floor, three bodies were found, lying in a single heap and almost on top of each other. These consist of nothing more than the blackened trunks and identification is out of the question. There can be little doubt, however, that one of these is the body of the operator of linotype No. 12, W. G. Tunstall. A bunch of keys, five in number, was found beside the head of flesh and on a nameplate attached to the keyring is Tunstall's name. He is known to have carried them constantly.

MYSTERY OF A TORSO.

At 2:30 p. m., the thirteenth body, represented only by a portion of a torso, was unearthed from a mass of bricks and mortar about five feet from the foot of the shaft. Whether this is actually part of the body of another victim or of that of one of those previously found is impossible to say. Its near proximity to the other bodies seems to indicate that it is the former, though only a minute examination can decide this with even an approach to certainty.

Lying beside one of the still upright standards that once supported the floor of the composing room, another body was found shortly after 6 o'clock last night. Though the clothing has been entirely burned away and the flesh is mere crisp, the corpse is entire with the exception of the hands and forearms. It was near one of the platen presses and across the lower limbs lay a heavy pipe, which had evidently fallen from the floor above. Beneath this the flesh was still red, though so badly disintegrated that it fell from the bones when the body was moved, leaving it

CLOSING IN.

ASSASSINS' TRAIL HOT.

Detectives Find Boat of Dynamiters.

EARL ROGERS AND BURNS BELIEVE THEY HAVE DISCOVERED LAUNCH.

"PASTIME" IS IDENTIFIED AS "PEERLESS" BY POWDER COMPANY SALESMAN.

TWO MEN RENTED CRAFT FOR SIX DAYS; BOXES FOR EXPLOSIVE LOCATED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

OAKLAND, Oct. 4.—In the discovery today of the launch Pastime, at the boat-house of Burrowes & Baxter, in the Oakland estuary, the detectives who are working on the case of the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building are certain they have at last located the mysterious craft known as the "Peerless," and used by the perpetrators of the crime to carry the dynamite sticks from the salesrooms of the powder company at Giant, Contra Costa county, September 23.

The boat was identified today by George Phillips, chief salesman of the powder company, as being identical with the one used by the men who purchased the powder. Detective W. J. Burns representing Earl Rogers, who is conducting the investigation into matter, visited boathouse today in company with Captain of Detectives W. J. Peterson of Oakland and several detectives from Los Angeles.

HOT ON TRAIL.

After a careful examination of the launch, and after hearing Phillips's identification, Burns said:

"There cannot be a doubt about that being the boat used by the men we are after. Bit by bit we have gained on them, and the finding of the boat in which they carried on most of their early operations is very important."

Two pairs of common blue overalls and a torn piece of the San Francisco name plates bearing some other name Chronicle of September 24 were the only things found in the boat.

It is plain to be seen where the than the Pastime had been fixed over the launch's name on both sides of the bow.

The detectives believe these plates bore the letters which formed the name Peerless, and which were purchased in a San Francisco store on the evening of September 22. Portions of the freeboard are broken, indicating the shipment of a heavy cargo.

MEN FIT DESCRIPTION.

Immediately after the visit to the boathouse, detectives were sent in an automobile to Alviso, a town about thirty miles down the bay toward San Jose, where several persons stated they had seen a strange launch in the vicinity, September 24, in which three men were riding. News of the finding of several boxes, such as are used to ship dynamite, caused the officers to lose no time in starting.

The two men who rented the launch from Douglas Burrowes, on September 20, at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, answer the description of the two men who negotiated the sale of the dynamite in every particular. They approached Burrowes and stated they had come from New York only two or three days previously, and that they wanted a launch in which to ride around the bay and up the Sacramento River. They said they expected to be gone a month. One of the men gave his name as Bryce and the other said he was A. F. Perry.

The men who purchased the dynamite are known as A. J. Bryson and William Morris. Bryce and Bryson are thought by the police to be the same person and Perry is thought to be Morris.

The men paid a deposit of $500 and Burrowes permitted them to have the launch.

At noon on September 28 the men returned in the boat. John Stanley, the attendant, received them in the office and deducted $20 for the six days' rental from the money —that had been on deposit, returning the remainder to his customers.

The men gave Stanley $9.50 additional, saying this amount would cover the wear and tear on the boat.

PLAN SANTA BARBARA SHOOT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The first division of the Pacific Fleet, consisting of the armored cruisers California, Colorado and Pennsylvania, with Rear Admiral Giles B. Harber in command, steamed from Chimbote, Peru, yesterday for San Francisco. The cruisers now steaming up the west coast left Valparaiso September 23. They will have regular target practice off the California coast, probably near Santa Barbara.

MARTYRS LAID TO LAST REST.

FUNERALS OF HARVEY-ELDER AND J. W. REAVES.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES HELD AT CHAPEL AND GRAVES.

FLORAL TRIBUTES TOKENS OF LOVE AND SORROW.

The funeral of Arlie Churchill Harvey-Elder, the young assistant city editor of The Times who met with death at his post of duty when the concentrated hate of unionism turned into fires of destruction, was held in the Bresee Chapel, yesterday afternoon, and was attended by members of his family, his intimate friends and comrades of the press from all the morning papers of the city.

Dr. Robert J. Burdette conducted the services and in a voice often choked by his tears, spoke of his dead friend, of the hope in the life to come, and the comfort of that faith. At the graveside in Rosedale Cemetery he also officiated and offered a short prayer consigning to dust all that is earthly of our comrade, with a few words of consolation for the living.

Surrounded and almost buried in flowers the dove-colored cloth casket was borne by pallbearers representing Corona Lodge of Pasadena F. & A. M., his home city of Whittier, and The Times. They were T. T. Test and Peter Orbon of Pasadena; Paul J. Denninger of Whittier, and Harry C. Carr, Bert C. Smith and A. L. MacKaye of The Times.

The services included music rendered by volunteer musicians of high standing in this State, the quartette consisting of Harry Clifford Lott, John Douglas Warner, Madame Dreyfus and Mrs. Tiffany of Pasadena. Prof. Frederick Stevenson was at the organ.

Dr. Burdette spoke to those in mourning words of tenderness and hope, teaching the lesson of Christian victory over death. He said:

DR. BURDETTE'S ADDRESS.

"One thing in this world of time and change there is, which is older than death. That is life. And one thing is older than life. That is the love that brooded over the wastes of chaos until light and life, twin children of God, were born of the infinite love. And life will outlast death, and sing the triumph of love over the grave, even as eternity will outlast time. For 'love is strong as death; many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it.' Love is stronger than death. For love is strong as life. Life—joyous, abundant, exultant—it runs along the mountaintops, over the crested billows of the sea; it cleaves the clear ether as an eagle's wings. Death is a slave, chained in his own darkness. A shadow among shadows of his own creation, weaving his fears—some mysteries in the night—mysteries that flee away with the darkness when the day-star brings on the morning with joy, and light, and life.

"For thousands of years death ruled the world with his brother, fear. It was a grisly horror, that had its dwelling place in the nether gloom. A hideous thing that peopled the underworld with the dead, outnumbering the multitudes that dwell for a little while upon the earth. A terror that overshadowed life, and builded cities of sepulchers.

"And all the way along the pilgrimage of the years, God always comforting his people; steadying their steps against their fear; spreading his wings of light over the valley of the shadow, shouting through the trumpet call of his prophets—'O death, I will be thy plagues! O grave, I will be thy destruction.'

"Then came Jesus Christ, Lord of Life, to carry out the will of his Father. Death, the destroyer, met and knew the Conqueror. Jesus spake to the dead, even as he spake to the living. And even as the living heard and loved, so the dead heard and obeyed.

"Once, the Savior stood beside the couch of a little maid, bending avbove the child to speak tenderly, using the phrase, tradition says, with which the Virgin Mother called her little son from his slumber in the morning: 'Little Lamb, I say unto thee, arise.' And the dead child heard the voice of love and life, and came back to the songs and plays of happy childhood.

"Once, he stood beside the bier of a young man, 'the only son of his mother, and she a widow,' as the funeral procession passed out of the gates of the city of Nain, and spoke to him with the voice of authority: 'Young man, I say unto thee, arise!' And the dead heard, and turning from the dark pathway leading to the grave, returned to the courage, and strength and high hopes and burning ambitions of young manhood.

"Yet, once again, he paused, with eyes half blinded by human tears, at the death-locked door of the sepulcher of Lazarus, his friend. And the Christ called to him loudly, that death might hear: 'Lazarus, come forth!' And the dead man heard, and came out of the shadowy aisles of death, and took up once more, as though they had been but broken by a sleep, the duties of life, with the strength and dignity of a man.

"And yet, once again, the Conqueror met the enemy. In the completion of his ministry, in the fullness of his perfect sympathy with all mankind, Jesus, the Son of God, bowed his head before the scepter of the king of terrors. Just for a passing night and day. And then, lo, softer than starlight, brighter than ten thousand noondays, glowed the sepulcher. The tomb of the dead was the sunrise of life everlasting. The fear of death was forever gone from the hearts of the people of God.

"Love stranger than death, stands today beside the casket that holds the dust of him who was Arlie Elder. Over the chasm of the grave, clear as the songs of the sons of God and the shouting of the morning stars in the great anthem of life and light that chanted the glories of creation, we hear the voice of the exalted Christ, calling across the shadows, 'I am the Resurrection and the Life. He that believeth on me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whosover liveth and believeth on Me, shall never die.'

"I would not give up—I would not qualify one little shading of my firm, positive, absolute belief in that magnificent doctrine of 'Him who was dead and is alive and who liveth for evermore'—I would not exchange it for the most perfect comprehension of all the cleverest guesses and the most brilliant doubts of all the wisest teachers and most learned scholars of all the ages of this world of human theories and mistakes, re-statements and corrections. For the philosophies of the scholars sound like the systems of men. This mighty declaration of everlasting life, rings like the voice of God.

"He was young, and life was dear to him. Today was bright as sunrise with the promise of tomorrow. Richly endowed with rare natural gifts, he had strengthened these treasures of God with the equipment of education, broad and deep. His feet were treading an upward path. Promotion in his chosen profession had come to him, unsolicited. His aspirations were lofty; his ideals noble and pure; his impulses God-sent. Hope ran singing before him; strength and courage walked beside him, the comrades of a man. Duty, the daughter of God, was his monitor. With tireless hands and busy brain and faithful soul, a co-worker with God, he laid broad and strong and true, the foundations of a useful life.

"Then the arrow, tipped with venom and winged with hate, sped by the hands of the assassin, hissed through the night, found the happy heart throbbing with the joy of duty and glad with the sweetness of labor well done. The pen fell from the ready hand, trailing a blur from the unfinished sentence. Murder, most foul, had done its fiendish work.

"So gentle was his life; so loving his nature; so tender his sympathy with men in their struggles, their temptations, their sorrows, it would disturb his soft repose if one should speak a word of bitterness above his head, pillowed in the 'sinless, stirless rest—the change that never changes.' He lays his hand upon our hearts, hot with the spirit of revenge, soothing our living anger to the sweet calm of the dead. He checks our human cry for the justice of God upon those who have wrought this awful crime, with the prayer of the Master whom he served—'forgive them.' This was his nature, living among us, in this world of the workdays. It is his perfected nature, radiant and glorified in the land where love is the only law.

"Dutiful son; loving brother; faithful husband; dear, gentle, loyal friend, great heart and true heart, farewell! God who gave you a work to do, who tested your fidelity through the fierce fires of martyrdom and gave you the grace that made you 'more than conqueror,' give you the peace and joy, and the higher and nobler ministries of the world of divine endeavor and accompliament—give you the peace that remaineth for the people of God."

FLORAL TRIBUTES.

The set pieces and floral tributes were an indication of the love and respect of those who knew Harvey-Elder. The San Francisco Press Club sent a handsome wreath; from the University Club was a great panel of asters with the initials "U.C." on a shield. The Times staff sent a set piece of a floral sword and pen crossed over an acorn with a scroll bearing the greeting usual with the "boys" when the paper goes to press, "Good Night."

From faraway Honolulu, where Harvey-Elder was acting city editor and financial editor on the Advertiser, his former associates had a beautiful wreath of white carnations, lilies of the valley and maidenhair fern with the Hawaiian greeting "Aloha" in gold across the center. From the Examiner was a tribute of magnificent lillies, with a card, "Heartfelt sympathy to the near ones bereaved." The Herald editorial staff sent a handsome piece.

The tribute from Gen. Harrison Gray Otis was a beautiful wreath emblematic of sorrow and fame. One of the most delicate set pieces was a wreath of white rosebuds and maidenhair fern from Mr. and Mrs. John L. Von Blon, Capt. C. E. Arfwedson, instructor at the Whittier State School, and from the school itself, came two handsome floral tributes. Other beautiful tokens of sorrow, sympathy and love were from Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, Roy Bradley Wheeler, Mrs. Louise George, John M. Beckwith of the Examiner, who risked his life at the fire trying to save his friend; E. R. Guirado of Whittier; Miss Elsie Smith, Mrs. C. St. Johns and Miss Mabel St. Johns, John Quincy Adams, Jr., and his mother, Dr. and Mrs. William V. Coffin, Mrs. Lewis R. Works, Mrs. Sarah Hare and family, Mrs. Arthur Willis Crippen, Miss Bess Filbert, Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Greaves, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Newlin, Aubrey E. Austin, Mrs. George Mason and family, Miss Cora Calvert-Foy, Julian Johnson, Mrs. Julian Johnson, Y. and K. Amamoto and H. W. Pfersching, Mrs. A. H. Cheney and Mrs. Stone.

FUNERAL OF J. W. REAVES.

Surrounded by a host of sorrowing friends and relatives, the body of J. Wesley Reaves, late private secretary to Harry Chandler, was laid to rest in Evergreen Cemetry yesterday afternoon.

As the hearse, bearing the coffin of this martyr to industrial freedom, drove up, it was met by Messrs. Joseph Hughes, C. H. Boeken Vroeger, L. G. Reynolds, J. M. Bilgo, who acted as pallbearers. Headed by Rev. W. E. Tilroe, pastor of the Boyle Heigths Methodist Episcopal Church, the little procession tenderly bore the coffin to its final resting place, which was banked high on either side with wreaths of beautiful flowers.

Mrs. Reaves, the invalid mother, was so prostrated with grief, that she remained in her carriage and listened to the beautiful and impressive service. Messrs. E. L. Williams, W. L. Lowder, Dr. W. Barnhart, J. Gribble, who composed the brotherhood quartette, sang a hymn after which Dr. Tilroe read the commital. As the coffin was towered into the grave there were no dry eyes in the large crowd, which had gathered to honor the remains of young Reaves, who had the respect of all who know him, and who proved himself to be not only a Christian gentleman, but a loyal American citizen. His wife and mother have been deprived of a loving husband and a dutiful son, but God's Kingdom has been enriched by yet another disciple of the true faith.

Reaves was a classamate of the writer at the Los Angeles Business College some six years ago. He graduated soon after the writer left that institution to take a position in The Times office becoming a fellow employee of the biggest newspaper in the world. He was a man of few words, preferring to devote his whole time and talent to study and work, and he made a success. He took the keenest delight in the literary society of the school and gave much of his spare time to typewriting "copy" for the Angelus, of which the writer was editor.

Reaves was an indefatigable worker. Early and late he was always to be found at his desk. He never shirked his duties and withal was modest to a degree.

A special memorial service will be held at the Boyle Heights M. E. Church on Sunday evening, when Dr. Tilroe and the members of the Epworth League will honor the memory of Reaves and those others who were murdered in the terrible explosion, which wrecked The Times building.

SCOUNDREL ESCAPES.

Unidentified Anarchist Arouses Rage of Citizens By His Vicious Tirade.

The rage of citizens living in the vicinity of Court and North Hope streets was raised yesterday afternoon when an unidentified man declared that the dynamiting of the Times building was not done soon enough and not wide enough in its scope.

When he finally left the vicinity after a further vicious tirade, he was followed by several men and boys. The man first attracted attention by trying to sell water filters at the Gale Apartments, at Court and North Hope streets. Mrs. Sue Gale, who conducts the place, turned him away, but he began talking about the explosion. He said he was at the fire about three minutes after the explosion occurred, and when asked how that came about, stated that he had a room near by and heard the crash.

He finally became so rabid in his declaration that Mrs. Gale closed the door. Then he attempted to enter a house across the street. He was met by a man who asked him what he wanted, and took to his heels, followed by a number of persons who had heard his talk. He escaped.

He is about 5 ft. 9 in. in height, has long, light, curly hair, and a disfigured nose.

CORONER'S JURY.

MEN OF RESPONSIBILITY TO CONDUCT INQUIRY.

CONFIDENCE-INSPIRING by reason of their reputation for probity and unbiased justice as well as for keen intelligence and business acumen, are the nine men upon whom will devolve the grim and responsible task of ascertaining the "contributory cause" of the death of the twenty-one men who perished in the destruction of The Times building last Saturday morning. Acting as a coroner's jury, it will not only be their duty to examine the bodies recovered, but as well to make a searching investigation of the ruins themselvs before their final verdict can be given to the world.

A special venire of twenty-five names was prepared by Coroner Hartwell, and within an hour the jury was complete. Though every one is a man of large business affairs and more than ordinarily busy at this particular season, they have willingly denied the pressing demands of their own interests and are prepared to devote every energy to the task which has been assigned them. That it will be thoroughly done, and a just and careful verdict returned is guaranteed by nothing better than by the names of the jurors themselves.

Those who will serve in this capacity are: E. B. Tufts, president of the Tufts-Lyon Arms Company; Carl E. McStay, president of the McStay Supply Company; John E. Brink, proprietor of the Saddlerock restaurant; Henry S. Jones, general manager for Cunningham, Curtiss & Welch; Martin Neuner, president of the Neuner Company; M. C. Adler, vice-president of Harris & Frank; Samuel Lauterbach, secretary of the Hub Clothing Company; Oscar Morgan, general manager of the Morgan Oyster Company, and C. G. Brown of No. 1049 South Hope street.

Because of his long experience and expert knowledge of the nature and effects of high explosives, Mr. Tufts has been elected foreman of the jury. Mr. McStay will serve the body as secretary.

Immediately upon the completion of the jury they entered upon their duties with an examination of the bodies now lying at the Bresee morgue and at the Boyle Heights establishment. This is for the purpose of arriving at "emergency verdicts," in order that the remains be given interment without waiting for the final finding.

Two verdicts of this character were returned yesterday morning upon the bodies of A. Churchill Harvey-Elder, who died in the Clara Barton Hospital Saturday morning, and J. Wesley Reaves, found in the ruins with his typewriter still beside him. In the latter case the report states that Reaves "came to his death from incineration, following upon explosion and fire in The Times building, the cause of which has not yet been determined." Harvey-Elder's death is directly ascribed to burning and internal injuries caused by jumping from a window, with the "contributory cause" as yet unknown to the jury.

In all probability similar verdicts will be immediately found upon all the bodies recovered. There is but small chance of a final finding in less than a week or ten days, according to a statement made by Deputy-Coroner Williams yesterday afternoon. While the jury's finding will be one independent of those returned by the other investigators of the matter, it is understood that the latter will be taken into consideration as evidence. The citizen's committee appointed by the mayor will probably be asked to submit their report to the coroner's jury for consideration.

At its own request, after viewing the bodies, the jury was conducted to the ruins in a body. Its members descended into the pit and made a careful examination of the twisted timbers and the debris. Still another trip was made over the wreckage, and many more will follow before a final verdict is reached.

TO OUR ADVERTISERS.

The Times heartily thanks its many advertisers for the unprecedented liberality of their favors and expresses its regret that on account of the limitations of its emergency equipment it has been unable to do justice to them. Very many of the advertisements offered during the past three or four days, the Times could not print. It craves the continued indulgence and co-operation of its patrons in this respect, assuring them that in an exceedingly short time it will have no difficulty in according as much space as may be desired and in handling every advertisement that may be offered. Extensive advertisers now find it helpful to make a little less display than usual.

VICTIMS OF ASSASSINS WILL REST IN ONE PLOT.

Plan of Gen. Otis For Their Joint Burial In Hollywood Cemetery Generally Approved by Their Bereaved Ones—Granite Shaft to Perpetuate Their Names and Death.

A reverent canvass was made yesterday by the management of The Times to learn the wishes of the families of the martyred dead in the matter of the disposition of the mangled bodies uncovered in the ruins. The majority of those sought out apparently acquiesced in the suggestion of Gen. Otis to bury the pitiful, nameless fragments of the faithful employees in one common grave in Hollywood Cemetery.

The thought of Gen. Otis is that this grave be situated near to that of beloved Mrs. Elisa A. Otis, and that a shaft similar to the one marking the final resting place of that sweet and noble woman be erected over the victims of Saturday morning's horror. It is proposed that the names of the men resting beneath, together with suitable words inscribed to their memory, be chiseled on this imperishable granite.

Two of the dead have already received private burial, A. Churchill Harvey-Elder, the assistant city editor, and J. Wesley Reaves, secretary to Mr. Chandler.

Of the fourteen bodies uncovered in the ruins of the Times building and removed to Bresee Bros.' undertaking rooms, two only in addition to that of Reaves, the identity of which was ascertained by its position in the debris, have been recognized. The corpse of Howard Courdeway was identified Monday by a wisp of hair, and personal trinkets on the body of John Howard caused it to be recognized by his seventeen-year-old son.

The widow of Howard, at her home on Evert street, expressed herself yesterday afternoon as favorable to the plan suggested by Gen. Otis for common burial. Mrs. Caress, who lives on Golden Gate avenue, also stated her approval of the idea.

In her apartments at No. 827 West First street, the widow of Harry L. Crane, the lovable assistant telegraph editor, awaits the advice of a sister in the East before deciding what disposition is to be made of her husband's body in the event it is identified. Personally, Mrs. Crane is in favor of common burial.

Mrs. Don E. Johnson, who mourns her dead at the Kenneth Apartments on Grand avenue, approves of Gen. Otis's suggestion.

The widow of Ernest Jordan is pathetically distraught between two griefs, the loss of her husband and the fact that her mother is sick with no hope of recovery. Mrs. Jordan lives at No. 1147 Maple avenue. She is strongly in favor of the idea.

The family of Carl Sallada at No. 1944 West Thirtieth street, have likewise signified approval.

The widow of J. C. Gallihar was seen at her home, No. 1043 South Olive street, surrounded by her five children, the eldest of whom is 15 years. The mother, beside being overwhelmed with sorrow, is sick. Her answer to the plan was in the affirmative.

The anguished widow of Fred Llewellyn is attended by her parents. In her home, No. 725 Hartford avenue, she expressed her approval of the common burial suggestion.

The widow and father of Grant Moore, No. 1645 Ingraham street, declared themselves favorable to Gen. Otis's idea in the event the body of the murdered husband and son cannot be identified.

Mrs. R. L. Sawyer, the widow of faithful "Bill," the Western Union telegraph operator, who lost his life in the fire, will accept the plan, provided there is no identification of her husband's remains. Mrs. Sawyer lives at No. 3639 Penry street.

The same sentiment was expressed by Mrs. Edward Wasson of No. 702 West First street.

The parents of Howard Courdeway at No. 933 Court Circle wish to give the body of their son a private burial if identification is possible. The father and mother of Charles Haggerty of No. 819 Amethyst street are of a similar mind.

The widow of Charles Gulliver, married barely five months, favors the burial of her husband with his comrades in a common grave. Her present place of residence is the Majestic Apartments on West First street.

Mrs. Frank Underwood of No. 646 Park Terrace has given her consent to the plan so far as concerns the body of her husband.

Mrs. Elmer Frink is very ill from the shock of her husband's tragic death. Seen at her home, No. 1125 East Tenth street, she expressed unqualified approval of the common-burial idea.

The widow of G. W. Tunstall, living at No. 1425 West Eighth street, desires that the remains of her husband be given burial with those of his comrades. Tunstall's body is thought to be one of those taken out yesterday.

Mrs. Harry Flynn, No. 1251 East Forty-seventh street, desires such a burial only in the event of no corpse being identified as that of her husband.

Substantial Sympathy.

Schepps & Harris, jewelers, representing the S. S. Schepps Company, incorporated, write to The Times expressing sympathy for the victims of the Times Building disaster and saying:

"To those who will suffer most as a result of this awful calamity, the widows and children of the brave fellows who lost their lives or were seriously injured in the fire Saturday morning, we consider a fund contributed to by subscribers and friends a fitting mark of sympathy at this time, and inclose herewith a check for $20 to apply to any such fund that may be started.

ORGANIZED LABOR BACK OF OUTRAGE AT TIMES.

JOHN P. IRISH PLACES BLAME WHERE IT BELONGS.

OTHER SYMPATHIZERS STATE THEIR OPINIONS.

"No man of sense, and no American fit to live in the Republic, doubts the agency of union labor in the crime." This is a sentence from one of the many letters containing expressions of sympathy for The Times and abhorrenec of those responsible for the dynamite outrage, which continue to be received by every mail.

The writer is John P. Irish of San Francisco, who, on returning day before yesterday from one of his distant ranches, got the news of assassination and property destruction. He immediately wrote to Gen. H. G. Otis and said.

"Organized labor has come to be a synonym for organized crime. Its principles are at war with American institutions and its practices are at war with the rights of men. You have suffered, and your men have fallen, as much in the cause of liberty as if you had been leading them on the battlefield. All honor to your high courage and to their memory."

BANKER'S SUGGESTION.

A delegate to the American Bankers' Association, who signs himself "A Sympathizer," writes thus:

"This thought occurred to me this morning. How would it do to have the charred remains of your faithful employees cremated, their ashes placed in an urn and the urn inclosed in a monument with appropriate inscriptions, and the same erected in one of the beautiful cemeteries of Los Angeles? Would it not be a beautiful tribute to the dead, a magnanimous act on the part of The Times and a consolation to the relatives of the deceased?"

THIS WAY OREGON FEELS.

C. S. Jackson, publisher of the Oregon Journal of Portland wires:

"Just back from the interior and learn of the outrage against you, The Times and society. Strength to you to bring the guilty to justice. Depend upon me for $500 toward a fund to run down the human devils and for the relief of the victims, living and dead, as you may determine. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and a free press must, shall and will be maintained."

READY TO ASSIST.

"As a friend and patron of many years standing," H. W. Frank of Harris and Frank, writes to express his sincere sympathy "in the great disaster which has befallen The Times and so grieved our city. It is the hope of every good citizen that the perpetrators of this foul crime against law and order will meet with swift and severe punishment. The great loss of life and bereavement of widows and orphans is much to be deplored. The Times, with its indomitable spirit, energy and enterprise, will go on as before. If there is anything I can do to assist in this emergency, in any manner whatsoever, my services are at your command."

UNIONS SANCTION CRIME.

"Employer" writes: "No matter what apologists for union labor and union methods may offer in extenuation or in denial of the terrible and bestardly destruction of The Times plant and the murdering of the noble men within its walls, the fact remains that no such crime would or could have been committed without the direct or indirect sanction of unionism. No matter what efforts may be made to cover up or to deny responsibility, unionism stands convicted today in the great court of public opinion, of this, the greatest crime of modern times against civilization and progress. The blow was struck with malice against a fearless newspaper, and the ramifications of that ghastly fear so vividly in evidence at the corner of First street and Broadway in Los Angeles extend, in fact, to the utmost reaches of civilization. No fair minded person the world over can be found unhurt by this terrible crime. In the light of these facts I would suggest a very simple method of thwarting future occurances of this kind:

"No worker with sufficient mind to merit the name of man can expect a future to obtain employment while acknowledging allegiance to a labor union. Therefore, let all employers stand together and agree, not on the open shop, but on the shop hermetically sealed to any worker who has the temerity to acknowledge the unfreedom of his unholy alliance with a union.

"The unions are honey-combed with men who have been forced into them under the fear of starvation; the same fear will cause them gladly to renounce allegiance to such murdering organizations."

SMASH INTO ROOM.

Police Break Into Place Where Man Is Accused of Using Chloroform On Woman.

Summoned by other persons living in the house who heard screams, the police broke into the room of Murine Martin in the Le Cour apartments, in 510 South Hill street, about 2:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon and arrested Arthur Wurlitzer who, it is charged, attempted to chloroform the woman with criminal intent.

Miss Martin, who is said to be a beautician, was resting in her room when Wurlitzer entered. From a bottle which he carried in his pocket, the police say he saturated a handkerchief with the anaesthetic and then grasped the woman and forced her to inhale the fumes of the drug. She fought the man off and screamed frantically for help but when roomers in the building attempted to open the door and see what caused the disturbance they found it bolted.

The police were hurriedly notified and Detectives Beaumont and Ingram were sent to the place in an automobile police patrol.

They were led to the woman's door

Would it not be a beautiful tribute to the dead, a magnanimous act on the part of The Times and a consolation to the relatives of the deceased?"

THIS WAY OREGON FEELS.

C. S. Jackson, publisher of the Oregon Journal of Portland wires:

"Just back from the interior and aghast at the outrage against you, The Times and society. Strength to you to bring the guilty to justice. Depend upon me for $500 toward a fund to run down the human devils and for the relief of the victims, living and dead, as you may determine. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and a free press must, shall and will be maintained."

READY TO ASSIST.

"As a friend and patron of many years standing," H. W. Frank of Harbor and Frank, writes to express his sincere sympathy "in the great disaster which has befallen The Times and grieved our city. It is the hope of every good citizen that the perpetrators of this foul crime against law and order will meet with swift and severe punishment. The great loss of life and bereavement of widows and orphans is much to be deplored. The Times, with its indomitable spirit, energy and enterprise, will go on as before. If there is anything I can do to assist in this emergency, in any manner whatsoever, my services are at your command."

UNIONS SANCTION CRIME.

"Employer" writes: "No matter what apologists for union labor and union methods may offer in extenuation or in denial of the terrible and cowardly destruction of The Times building and the murdering of the noble men within its walls, the fact remains that no such crime would or could have been committed without the direct or indirect sanction of unionism. No matter what efforts may be made to cover up or to deny responsibility, unionism stands convicted today in the great court of public opinion of this, the greatest crime of modern times against civilization and progress. The blow was struck with fiendish glee against a fearless newspaper, but the ramifications of that ghastly deed are vividly in evidence at the corner of First street and Broadway in Los Angeles extend, in fact, to the utmost reaches of civilization. No right-minded person the world over will be found unhurt by this terrible deed. In the light of these facts I would suggest a very simple method of thwarting future occurances of this kind.

"No worker with sufficient mind to claim the name of man can expect hereafter to obtain employment while acknowledging allegiance to a labor union. Therefore, let all employers stand together and agree, not on the street or in the shop, but on the shop hermetically sealed to any worker who has the temerity to acknowledge the union of his unholy alliance with a murderous band.

"The unions are honey-combed with men who have been forced into them through the fear of starvation; the same fear will cause them gladly to renounce allegiance to such murdering organizations."

SMASH INTO ROOM.

Summoned by other persons living in the house who heard screams, the police broke into the room of Murine Hartin in the Le Cour apartments, 310 South Hill street, about 2:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon and arrested Arthur Wurlitzer who, it is said, attempted to chloroform the woman with criminal intent.

Miss Hartin, who is said to be a tourist, was resting in her room when Wurlitzer entered. From a vial which he carried in his pocket, police say he saturated a handkerchief with the anaesthetic and then grasped the woman and forced her to inhale the fumes of the drug. She fought the man off and screamed frantically for help but the roomers in the building attempted to open the door and see what caused the disturbance they found it bolted.

The police were hurriedly notified and Detectives Beaumont and Ingram were sent to the place in an automobile police patrol.

They were led to the woman's door by the persons who had summoned them and, on finding the door bolted, threw their weight against it and forced it in.

Wurlitzer was quickly overpowered and handcuffed and taken to the Central Police headquarters. On being searched the detectives said they found a bottle partly filled with chloroform in his pocket.

Wurlitzer was given cross examination in the detectives' office and is said to have confessed.

TAX ORDINANCE IS UPHELD.

SUPERIOR COURT PASSES ON REFERENDUM MEASURE.

Sustains Demurrers of the City in the Actions Brought by Lighting Corporations for a Temporary Injunction Restraining the Municipality from Collection of Tax.

Judge Conrey yesterday decided that what is known as the city tax ordinance is reasonable, definite and certain, thus affirming the legality of that bit of city legislation.

The decision arose in the court sustaining the demurrers of the city in the actions brought by the Southern California Edison Company and the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, for the temporary injunction restraining the city from the collection of the tax under the ordinance adopted by the City Council.

It was contended by the corporations involved that the ordinance passed by the City Council June 14 last, could not take effect until thirty days after its passage, and that therefore the vote of June 30 which the ordinance authorized, was void.

The court said in part: "I am not prepared to hold that the court is bound to accept, without any right of further inquiry, a declaration by the City Council, that an ordinance passed by it is an urgency measure, and thereby exempted from the right of referendum, although decisions are cited strongly supporting such limitation upon the court's power. But I do agree with the city's contention that an election ordinance called pursuant to legal demand for a referendum vote, is not an ordinance which is subject to any further demand for referendum vote. The charter never intended an endless chain of this kind."

The corporations contended further that that in so far as the license ordinance imposed a license fee upon the sale of electricity and gas, the ordinance was void in that it did not fix the license but delegated to the City Clerk the power to fix the license fee without providing a safe and sure rule for his guidance.

The court found that this objection was not well taken for the reason that the clerk's duty related merely to fixing the amount due on the statement furnished by the companies showing the total amount of its receipts or sales during the preceding quarter; that his duties were merely clerical, and not judicial.

The argument in favor of the proposition that the ordinance is indefinite and unreasonable, is answered by the court in the statement that although the license is required to be paid in advance, the method appears to be reasonable, definite and certain.

McBurney's Free Distribution of his
Kidney Bladder and Rheumatism

Continues

Hundreds came yesterday to Boswell & Noyes Drug Store, corner Third and Broadway for FREE Sample bottle of my medicine, and I have decided to continue the distribution of this cure until Wednesday, October 5th, so that every Rheumatic sufferer in Los Angeles may have a chance to try it free. I want the public to know the truth about this specific. I want every physician, no matter how prejudiced he may be, to procure as many vials of this remedy as he may desire and make a thorough test of it. I know that it will relieve nearly all rheumatic pains in a few hours. I emphatically state this cure will do all that I claim for it. One dose relieves, one bottle most always cures.

This distribution must not be considered in any sense a charity, but as a scientific investigation, which should interest the rich as well as the poor. If McBurney's medicine will do all that is claimed for it, then every physician should give it his endorsement and every sufferer should resort to its use. If it does not do what is claimed for it, then it should be denounced and its sale prohibited by law. By this free distribution the public, who are most interested, become the judges. If you are unable to call for free samples, you can get the remedy at any drug store for $1.50.

Orange County Table Water

A Perfect Drinking Water

LOS ANGELES, July 21.— It is used by U. S. secret service men and was ordered for the officers of the entire fleet, from San Diego to San Francisco, "as a relief from the distilled water which etchcey arewIETAOINN water which they are forced to drink on long voyages."

When the government drinks distilled water only because forced to it, why drink it when having another choice—the choice the government made when privileged to choose?

Printer's ink is cheap. A secret investigation and analysis that comes out on top is what counts.

Boiled water is dead. Likewise any water that distills through decayed matter in foul retorts and steam pipes.

Filtered water percolates through a mass of decayed animal and vegetable matter.

Waters pumped from springs or wells near the city are contaminated by seepage from cesspools or surface drainage. It cannot be otherwise.

THAT BILLION DOLLAR BALL.

FUNCTION LAST EVENING IS A BIG SUCCESS.

INTERIOR DECORATIONS FORM ONE MARVELOUS DREAM.

ENTIRE DOME IS CONVERTED INTO EXOTIC CANOPY.

The Billion Dollar Ball last night at Shrine Auditorium was one of the greatest successes in the Los Angeles record of surpassing entertainment and hospitality. They called it the "Billion Dollar Ball" for the sake of euphony and because the 2500 guests represented in their custody about that sum of money. If it had been a ball with a billion dollars behind it, it could hardly have been more elaborately conceived or perfectly executed.

The interior of the big ballroom was such a dream that the committee in charge could not bring themselves to the point of tearing it to pieces without giving Los Angeles people a chance to enjoy it. Al Malaikah Shrine therefore will give a grand ball for its own members and their friends on Thursday evening.

The members of the reception committee greeted the guests at the ball on the dais in one end of the long room screened from the dancing by portieres of smilax. The entire dome had been converted into an exotic canopy of verdure and bloom. Beneath this setting of enchantment moved handsomely gowned women—perhaps the most handsome and beautifully gowned group of women Los Angeles has ever seen, for the leaders in Los Angeles society were there as well as the guests from eastern cities.

There were elaborate refreshments with a group of Indian singers and dancers to entertain in the supper room. The streets without were packed with automobiles for miles in every direction. The attendance at the ball must have reached a total of between 2500 and 3000.

NEARLY ALL REPRESENTED.

The reception committee at the ball represented nearly all of the banks of Los Angeles. Joseph D. Radford was chairman and the members were: Farmers & Merchants National, J. A. Graves, T. E. FROM THE HEART.

BANKERS SUBSCRIBE TO FAMILIES OF MARTYRS.

Pause in Work of Convention to Express in Substantial Manner Sympathy for Victims of Unionite Hate—President Wheeler of University of California Gives Advice.

Upon being formally welcomed to Los Angeles yesterday morning by Mayor Alexander, the American Bankers' Association paused in the transaction of its business to vote $5000 to families of employees of the Los Angeles Times killed by assassins. Charles H. Huttig of St. Louis, one of the most influential members of the association, introduced the resolution. It was seconded from all parts of the house.

F. O. Watts of Tennessee, who will be the next president of the association, obtained recognition and made a splendid speech. He referred to the American spirit of brotherhood which has brought immediate responses in such instances as the Johnstown flood, the San Francisco earthquake and the Galveston flood. The amount of money designated, he said, would only serve to express, in a small measure, the sympathy of the association.

When the seconding speech had been finished, the delegates were impatient to vote, but Henry Dimse of New York, asked the privilege of making another second to the resolution. He also paid tribute to the men whose lives had been sacrificed to appease human hatred. The resolution was adopted unanimously, and the treasurer was instructed to turn over the sum of $5000 at once to the Los Angeles Clearinghouse.

The opening session of the American Bankers' Association was an impressive scene. Banners of purple and gold marked the State sections in the body of the Auditorium. The balconies were filled with wives and visitors. President Lewis Pierson, in his annual address, made some of the most significant suggestions that have come from the financial leaders of the nation in recent times.

ADVICE FROM WHEELER.

The notable feature of the afternoon session was an address by President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California, on "The Banker As a Public Servant." President Wheeler did not enter into the technical field of finance, but discussed his subject from the layman's point of view.

"It is of great importance to this nation," he said, "that the bankers, and especially the representatives of the great metropolitan institutions whose constituency is wider than the city and practically national, should know their constituency. More intimately they know and understand the American people East and West, the better it will be for all concerned. Those who do not understand these people, its moods and especially its pre-election moods, will often be disconcerting.

"He who knows only certain classes of the population, especially the wealthier classes, may well be pessimistic and generally is. But one who knows a good mixture of farmers, laboring men and shopkeepers in a mixture of localities, for instance in California, Wyoming, Nebraska, Indiana and New York, will always, I venture to say, unless he be some sort of a sick man, declar chis faith in the soundness and rightmindedness of the American people.

"No one who really knows the people will gather any solicitude from the prevailing unrest concerning tariff, trusts and conservation, or the demands for direct legislation and direct election.

"It is true the people are just at present somewhat 'on the rampage.' The recent tariff measure was a disappointment to them. They refuse to be governed by consolidated wealth, and have no idea of giving money in any form a vote. They oppose burning up the resources of the company under forced draft where the gilded phrase, 'development of the country,' hides a concentration of vast wealth and power into single hands at public cost.

"They are not satisfied with the present representative system as giving proper effectiveness to the popular will in party and nation. There is no possible doubt as to their desire and intention in these matters. They will get what they want. But there is no reason for gloom in the premises. A certain portion of the governmental mechanism does not work right, and they propose to change it.

"The result they wish to attain by their change is the result that was originally sought in the mechanism about to be discarded—nothing more or less, namely the plain and accurate expression of the public will. It goes no further. Property interests are not menaced; the pillars of the State are not undermined. They are both being rendered more secure. It will only be when the government does not express the people's will and the people cannot change it, that real peril will arise."

OPENING SESSION.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The first day's session was called to order yesterday morning at 10 o'clock by President Lewis E. Pierson.

Dr. Robert J. Burdette, pastor emeritus of the Temple Baptist church, immediately arose and delivered an earnest invocation.

In the absence of Gov. Gillett who was to have delivered the leading address of welcome, Mayor Alexander welcomed the visiting money kings and told in a few words of the earnest welcome the city offered; of the great growth experienced, and the tremendous development movements which were now under way. He spoke o fthe harbor and its great possibilities; of the great Owens River aqueduct and of the civic pride which is perhaps, better shown in Los Angeles than in any other city of similar size in the United States. He said that the bankers should be interested in the tremendous expenditure of capital which has been made and which is to be made.

W. H. Halliday, president of the Los Angeles Clearing house, was introduced by Mr. Pierson and briefly sketched the great resources of the Los Angeles banks; their tremendous deposits and their strength.

"There is only one question I want to ask of you gentlemen," said Mr Halliday, "and that is; keep after the currency question until you can give the United States as good if not a better system than any other country in the world."

The annual address of President Pierson attracted considerable attention as he reviewed the work of the organization for the last year. He said that while the Postal Savings Bank committee had strenuously opposed the Federal Government enacting a law providing for postal savings bank, the administration had found it necessary to enact such a law to fulfill party pledges. Continuing he said:

"The opposition of our association was based upon the principal that it was as improper for the Government to extend its paternalism and enter the banking business, as it would be to enter the grocery business; that there would be always the temptation on the part of succeeding administrations to regard the deposits received as revenues rather than obligations; that such deposits, if accumulated to a vast amount and payable on demand, would, in any future war crisis weaken the nation's credit when that credit should be strongest."

Referring to the so-called "bill of lading frauds" of the last year, which totalled a loss of $16,000,000 through the failure of two cotton houses Mr. Pierson said:

"This condition precipitated a loss of confidence in this document as an instrument of value to the extent that foreign bankers, largely affected through these frauds, passed resolutions announcing their determination to withhold acceptance of draft drawn against Cotton Export Bills of Lading after October 31, 1910, unless the American banks through whose hands they passed would guarantee both the genuineness of the signature of the railroad agent on the bill and the receipt of the cotton by the railroad. This stand no doubt was influenced by the failure of our senate to enact into law the Stevens Bill drawn to hold issuing carriers liable for bills of lading signed by authorized agents whether or not the goods had been received."

Mr. Pierson touched briefly upon the success which has attended the formation of the American Institute of Banking and commended the system of issuing travelers checks, which has been of a recent origin. He stated that the National Civic Federation, which held a conference during the year with the governors of the various states, had decided to organize its State branches with the object in view of securing the passage of various commercial acts including the Negotiable Instruments Act, the Warehouse Receipt Act, the Bill of Lading Act and the Bulk Sales Act.

Paying a tribute to the present system of bank supervision on the part of the Federal Government, Mr. Pierson advocated an additional general system of bank accounting.

In speaking of the tremendous increase in the sale and purchase of commercial paper, i. e., stocks and bonds, he called attention to the complete bureaus or systems of information which are maintained by all banks and said that these were rapidly working closer together and would soon have every name under supervision in the matter of credit.

The fact that "note kiting" has been indulged in to a great extent during the last year called for a few words from President Pierson. He explained a system whereby well-to-do business men and merchants become tangled with schemers and awoke to find their names upon worthless paper.

By far the greater portion of Mr. Pierson's speech was devoted to banking and currency reform, the gist of his remarks being in advocacy of the organization of a central bank which would govern the fluctuancy of currency and which would provide for a great reserve to be used in the case of panics.

The annual report of General Secretary Farnsworth showed the association to be in excellent condition and that the younger officials of the banks were beginning to take an active interest in the workings of the association. He showed the total membership of the organization to be 11,500.

The morning session was completed with the reading of the reports of the treasurer, auditing committee, general counsel, executive council and standing protective committee.

KNOCKED OUT ONCE

LABORITES ARE STILL AT IT.

HAVE GEN. OTIS ARRESTED ON SAN FRANCISCO CASE.

Allege That The Times Libeled Them Criminally by Asserting That They Came Down Here to Promote Mischief and Violence. What Do You Think of That?

Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, president of the Times-Mirror Company, was arrested yesterday by Capt. Paul Flammer, chief of detectives, on two warrants issued by Hon. E. P. Shortall, one of the judges of the police court of the city of San Francisco, upon complaints sworn to by A. J. Gallagher, alleging libel.

A writ of habeas corpus was immediately sworn out in behalf of the accused, and Judge Willis, acting as presiding judge, made the writ returnable before Judge Davis this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Gen. Otis was allowed to go on his own recognizance, no bond being required. The suggestion was made by accused's counsel, W. J. Hunsaker, that this course be pursued, and in this recommendation Deputy District-Attorney W. J. Ford, heartily joined. He said the only object of a bond was to secure the attendance of persons at the hearing of their cases, and there was no doubt in his mind but that Gen. Otis would be on hand when wanted. Judge Davis therefore ordered that Gen. Otis be allowed to go without bond. The accused was not in the courtroom at the time.

These are the cases in which The Times is accused by labor union bosses of San Francisco of libelling them by asserting that they came down here to promote violence.

The complaint against Gen. Otis is the same as served against Harry Chandler, vice-president and assistant manager of the Times-Mirror Company ten days ago. A writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Mr. Chandler was procured and on a full hearing of the case, Judge Davis dismissed the writ and discharged the prisoner, who had furnished a $100 bond for his appearance.

FACULTY OUSTS PECK.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Dr. Harry Thurston Peck, one of the foremost Latin scholars of the world, named as defendant in a $50,000 breach of promise suit brought by Esther Quinn, of Boston, was dismissed as professor of Latin language and literature by the trustees of Columbia University today.

The dismissal grew directly out of Miss Quinn's suit, and subsequent developments which involved Dr. Peck's controversy with President Butler.

Although the resolution of the trustees terminates Dr. Peck's connection with the university, "herbwith," he announced tonight he would not relinquish his position without a legal fight. In consideration of his long service, the board voted him a lump sum equivalent to his salary, $5000, for the current academic year.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The committee that investigated the office of the City Oil Inspector, found it to be costly and recommended that the office be abolished. Final vote was postponed one week.

The City Council declined to pay the Milwaukee Building Company $1300 commission on a fire house that was never built, but the plans for which are understood to have been ordered by ex-Chief Lips.

Judge McCormick yesterday decided that the garbage reloading station at Alliso and Macy streets is a nuisance and must be abated. A perpetual injunction is ordered against the City Garbage Contractor, Charles A. Alexander.

The trial of Frank M. Bell, charged with the murder of O. P. Widaman, was set by Judge Willis yesterday for December 12.

COMMITTEE REPORTS ADVERSE TO OIL INSPECTOR.

Final Vote Postponed for One Week—Building Company Relied On ex-Fire Chief and Loses Big Commission — Proposed Maple-Avenue Widening Causes Protest.

The Supply Committee of the City Council, which made an investigation of the office of City Oil Inspector Blackmar, yesterday reported in favor of abolishing the office.

It is alleged in the report that in fifteen months the office of the oil inspector has saved the city but $15, but has cost between $300 and $400 a month to keep it open. The committee also recommended the appointment of a man in the office of the City Engineer to do the same work, and later an ordinance was adopted providing for the additional clerk.

Councilman Gregory came to the defense of Blackmar and his office, declaring that people who know of the splendid work accomplished would be indignant at the action, and on his motion the final vote was postponed until next Tuesday.

WITHOUT AUTHORITY.

COUNCIL REFUSES TO PAY.

In the matter of the bill of the Milwaukee Building Company, in which the city is charged with $1300 for preparing plans for an engine house on West Seventh street, on recommendation of the City Attorney the demand was denied. It appeared from the statement of the City Attorney that the only authority that could be discovered for preparing the plans or the cost of the building, had come from ex-Chief Lips, who had no authority to order the work done. It was to be another "deluxe" affair, costing between $40,000 and $50,000.

TO BE RECONSIDERED.

MAPLE-AVENUE WIDENING.

The proposition to widen Maple avenue to eighty feet, aroused the opposition of a number of property owners on that thoroughfare, and they appeared before the City Council to object yesterday. It is proposed to take ten feet from private property on each side of the street, from Sixth to Jefferson, leaving the one block between Fifth and Sixth, but sixty feet in width. This is done because the people of that block oppose the widening. The motion to refer the matter to the proper committee was lost, and Councilman Stewart gave notice that he would move a reconsideration on next Tuesday.

In speaking of the subject yesterday Councilman O'Brien declared that there would always be kicker, and if left to them no improvement of any kind would ever be made.

CITY HALL BRIEFS.

EMERGENCY MOTORCYCLES.

In order to keep pace with the other police movements in the present emergency, the Council authorized the purchase of three motorcycles for the use of the Police Department.

A large number of protests against the condemnation of property to be added to the south side of Agricultural Park, were in attendance at the meeting of the Council yesterday, but the press of other matters compelled a postponement, and they will be heard on next Tuesday at 2 p. m.

The Council yesterday authorized the lease of two tug boats at Wilmington for fire protection. The lease will be made for one year at the rate of $250 a month, and the City Attorney was directed to prepare the lease.

An appropriation of $100 was made toward the expenses of the Federation Building celebration, which will be held today.

Attorney Haskell, appearing for the Pacific Electric Railway Company, yesterday stated to the Council that he would at once file a vacation of the franchise on Olive street, between Sixth and Seventh, in accordance with the action of the council declaring it forfeited.

An appropriation of $3900 was made for the installation of fire hydrants at Hollywood, by the United Hollywood Water Company.

SETTLERS WIN FIGHT.

Final Decision Embracing Land Near Brawley is Victory Over Southern Pacific.

Imperial valley settlers, living near Brawley, have just won a victory over the Southern Pacific, in their fight against having the railroad lands thrown off anew. Notice of the final decision of the General Land Office was received yesterday at the local land office.

The government granted alternate sections to the railroad to assist in furnishing funds for its construction. The land was surveyed in 1856, but it was impossible, in most instances, to find the monuments of the surveys. The settlers took possession of alternate sections, leaving vacant the property which was thought to be set apart for the railroad. They have proved the property and increased its value.

The Southern Pacific caused the valley to be re-surveyed about a

Final Decision Embracing Lands Near Brawley Is Victory Over Southern Pacific.

Imperial valley settlers, living near Brawley, have just won a victory over the Southern Pacific, in their fight against having the railroad lands set off anew. Notice of the final decision of the General Land Office was received yesterday at the local land office.

The government granted alternate sections to the railroad to assist in furnishing funds for its construction. The land was surveyed in 1856, but it was impossible, in most instances, to find the monuments of the surveyors.

The settlers took possession of alternate sections, leaving vacant the property which was thought to be that set apart for the railroad. They improved the property and increased its value.

The Southern Pacific caused the valley to be re-surveyed about a year ago. As the sections were marked out, the larger part of each which had been settled on was railroad land. It endeavored to assert the rights of ownership, according to the new lines.

A contest was conducted before Register Buren and Receiver Robinson, and they decided that it would be contrary to public policy to, at this time, oust the ranchmen from the larger part of their improved property, and give them in place of it land which is in a wild state. The Commissioners of the General Land Office has confirmed their decision.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

DECIDES ISSUE OF GARBAGE.

ORDERS THE REMOVAL OF THE RELOADING PLANT.

Judge McCormick Holds That the Health, Comfort and Safety of the Persons Living Near the Station Can Be Safeguarded Only by an Immediate Change of Location.

Judge McCormick solved the garbage unloading issue yesterday by handing down a decision permanently enjoining Charles A. Alexander, city garbage contractor, from using or permitting to be used the district bounded by Macy, Bridge, Aliso and Anderson streets for the purpose of reloading garbage from vehicles into cars or otherwise or at all.

In order that the public safety, health and interests of the city of Los Angeles may be safeguarded, it was ordered that the perpetual injunction should not go into effect until this week Friday.

The action that resulted in the opinion of Judge McCormick was brought by L. R. Alderman and others residing in the vicinity of the garbage-reloading station, who alleged, and evidently proved to the satisfaction of the court that the plant was a nuisance and menace to the health and the happiness of the people. A mass of testimony to that effect was taken.

It was alleged on the part of Alexander that the noxious smells in that vicinity came from other causes, and that if the condition alleged did exist, that the plaintiff had no legal right to maintain the action.

The decision of the court is for the plaintiffs in every particular and, under the order, there will be an end of the complaint so long indulged in by the people who reside in the vicinity of the garbage reloading station.

Judge McCormick in his opinion, gave expression to the view that the maintenance of the garbage station constituted not only a serious annoyance to the rights of the people residing there, but that it was extremely hazardous and dangerous to health and safety of all the people in that section. The Court thought that the evidence clearly showed that there had been a number of cases of sickness in that vicinity ever since the station was established, caused, in the view of the court, by the garbage reloading station. It was also shown, says Judge McCormick, that one school was forced to close its doors because the pupils became sick on account of the odors and stenchies arising from the garbage unloaded at that place. In closing Judge McCormick says:

"My conclusions, therefore, in this matter are that there is neither safety, necessity nor justice in subjecting these plaintiffs and the other persons living near the present garbage reloading station to the annoyance, injury, discomfort and danger, which is being occasioned them by reason of the maintenance of said garbage reloading station at its present location. Neither am I able from the evidence in this case to say that these dangers can be removed or remedied to any considerable extent by any change or alteration of the present garbage reloading station at said point, but I believe, on the contrary, that the nuisance is one of such magnitude and danger that the health, safety and comfort of the plaintiffs herein, and of all the persons living near said garbage reloading station can be safeguarded only by the immediate removal of said garbage reloading station."

BELL WANTS DELAY.

COURT DOES NOT AGREE.

Frank M. Bell, charged with the murder of Attorney O. P. Widaman at Artesia July 23, last, was in Judge Willis' court yesterday, to be arraigned on the information. When asked whether he pleaded guilty or not guilty, the prisoner replied in a firm voice, "Not guilty, your honor." An attempt was made by Bell's attorney to have the case set for trial some time in January next, but Judge Willis would not consent to such a long delay, and the beginning of the hearing, after some discussion, was fixed for December 12.

James McLain pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary, and he will be before the court for sentence Friday.

Robert McIver and Lester Hart both pleaded guilty to burglary, and they will be sentenced Friday. Meantime the probation machinery will be set to work in their behalf.

Dr. W. R. Price, the Long Beach disciple of the mysterious and occult, who is charged with forgery in connection with certain transactions in the sale of the stock of the National Gold Dredging Company, will plead Friday. Dr. Price is now held to answer to the charge of securing money under false pretenses in the same business transaction. The jury disagreed on the occasion of the first trial, and the second has been set for the present month.

Peter Vorath and Harry J. Nau, who are charged with robbing the jewelry establishment of K. I. Perelson on Main street, divided as to their views on the question of guilt. Vorath pleaded not guilty and he will be arraigned Friday, while his partner in the job, Nau, who was brought back to Los Angeles from the East to face the charge, threw himself upon the mercy of the court, and pleaded guilty to the information.

H. F. Gray, charged with giving a check on a bank where he had no funds, was put in San Quentin for two years.

In the case of George D. Graham and Walter Laughlin, charged with robbery, Laughlin pleaded guilty. Graham will have until Friday to make up his mind what he wants to do.

WIDENING EXCEPTIONS.

LOS ANGELES STREET CASE.

The exceptions to the report of the appraisers appointed to assess the value of the land to be appropriated ten feet wide, in the widening of Los Angeles street between Seventh to Twenty-third streets, were partly heard in Judge Conrey's court yesterday, and the testimony will continue during today.

The appraisers were C. L. Higbee, S. H. McClung and D. F. Anderson, the value of the property involved being in the neighborhood of $500,000

ACCUSES MOTHER.

DIVORCED HUSBAND SUES.

A suit involving the custody of Jesse Bevis, son of Fred M. and Myrtle Bevis, was on trial in Judge Bordwell's court yesterday. Bevis is a business man of Los Angeles. The action at bar was in his initiative compelling the wife to show cause why the order of the court made three years ago in relation to the custody of the son should not be changed.

In 1907 Mrs. Bevis secured an interlocutory decree of divorce and accompanying this was an order awarding the son to her custody. Since that time, Bevis has married again and he wants the boy. He alleged that the mother was not a proper person to have charge of the child; that she had placed it in the McKinley Home as an orphan, and otherwise had been derelict in her duty.

A number of witnesses are to be examined in the case.

WAR OF BROKERS.

PRICE ON BEATING.

Judge McCormick and a jury heard the evidence yesterday in the action brought by C. A. Scott against A. T. Jergins, rival brokers in the H. W. Hellman Building, to recover $35,250. The amount is alleged to be due Scott as the result of a pummeling administered by Jergins May 31 last, in the corridor of the building where the parties are located.

The trouble arose over the transactions of Scott in a real estate deal, wherein it was charged that he incurred a bill of $100 not authorized by Jergins, and a mysterious letter in which allegations were made against Jergins played a part in the cause of the melee.

Scott testified that Jergins knocked him him down after he had refused to apologise for some of the statements contained in the letter, and beat him so severely that he was compelled to remain in bed three days healing his wounds and getting the black out of his eyes.

Jergins asserted that Scott was the aggressor, and that he got nothing more than was coming to him for an unprovoked attack.

FILES VOLUNTARY PETITION.

Creditors of William Bartling, a merchant, filed a petition in the United States District Court yesterday asking to have him declared an involuntary bankrupt. Yesterday he filed a voluntary petition. His assets are placed at $2200, with $4426.31 debts.

CHECK CAREER CHECKED.

H. F. Gray was taken to San Quentin by Deputy Sheriff William Powers last night. He is under sentence of two years for having passed fictitious checks.

DECLINES TO CO-OPERATE.

The Times disclaims any desire to control or even to influence the action of the committee appointed by Mayor Alexander to investigate the dynamiting of The Times building and the murder of its inmates. But, in the name of common fairness, common sense and common justice to the dead and the living, it protests against the Mayor's committee accepting the offered "co-operation" of a committee appointed or to be appointed by Gallagher, Tveitmoe, Kelly and other leading spirits of the "American Federation of Labor."

"Beware when the Greeks make presents," says the ancient proverb. We want no Trojan horse to be accepted, with armed enemies in its belly. A committee of laborite bosses might, if admitted to the councils of the Mayor's committee and possessed of its secrets, "co-operate" after a fashion that would aid the murderers to escape. It would hardly be expected that the great wolves of a band would honestly "co-operate" with the farmer to detect and punish the little wolves who had killed his sheep. The labor leaders might indeed say, and possibly say truthfully, "We regret it, not because of its wickedness, but because it was a foolish act that will react upon our cause, and lessen if not destroy our opportunity for riding in autos and drinking champagne at the expense of our deluded followers."

The offer of co-operation by those who have misadvised and misled the honest and peaceful members of trades unions is doubtless made because the dynamiting of The Times, the murder of its working force and the attempts to assassinate Gen. Otis and Mr. Zeehandelaar was a crime of such appalling magnitude as to arouse the indignation of the people of the State against its perpetrators and enlist the active efforts of thousands to detect them.

In such efforts at detection the offered co-operation of San Francisco labor bosses should not be accepted because the horrible crime was largely due to the teachings of the co-operators.

The cowardly ruffian, Fieder, struck with an iron club the back of the head of a non-union workman who was aiding to carry the corpse of a fellow workman away from the building where he met his death, and then Fieder led his gang while they insulted and defaced the dead body. Did the leaders of the American Federation of Labor denounce these acts and offer to "co-operate" in a lawful effort to punish their perpetrator? No, they furnished bonds to release him, and made him grand marshal of the procession which was to have paraded here on Monday last. The farce of attempting to place Los Angeles under the rule of labor union leaders has resulted in a great tragedy. The skirts of the San Francisco advisers of strikes and boycotting, and insulting and assaulting those honest and fearless workmen who refused to submit to their dictation and contribute to their support, are not morally clear of the great crime now under investigation. Whether they will escape legal responsibility for it remains to be seen.

It was held in the case of the Chicago anarchists that those who counseled their followers to a course of conduct which resulted in the murder of the policemen were guilty as accessories before the fact, although they had not advised the particular act of murder. The Supreme Court of Illinois sustained the ruling and the convicted men were hanged, including one who was not in the State at the time of the murder, and whose sole connection with it consisted in advising, in a paper published by him, the killing of any officers who should attempt to suppress any anarchistic meetings.

The "co-operation" of Gallagher and Tveitmoe is not needed and their motives in offering it are distrusted.

RECALLING OIL LAND PATENTS.

The Times offers neither adverse criticism nor kindly indorsement of the proposition to take away from the Southern Pacific Company the lands patented to it as agricultural, but which lands have since been discovered to contain fuel oil.

The Times might wish that these lands should be restored to the public domain, but if it were to devote itself to continued advocacy of such restoration it would simply be beating the air with words, for the question of canceling government patents to lands on which oil has been found is a question of construction of a Federal statute. It is a question of law purely to be determined finally by the Supreme Court of the United States, which tribunal is not in the habit of taking its law from the newspapers, even when a newspaper counts great constitutional lawyers among its editorial corps.

The question of the right of the United States to cancel patents to railroad companies issued for lands granted in aid of railroad construction, which lands have since the issuance of the patents been discovered to contain minerals, is now pending in the courts of the mining States, and is presumably on its way to the Supreme Court of the United States, which alone can finally determine it.

The contention of the government is that as the Act of Congress of 1862 granting alternate sections of land to the Union and Central Pacific railroad companies to aid the construction of the road, exempted mineral lands from the grant, therefore the exemption is still in existence, and should be enforced whenever mineral is discovered on the granted land, though such discovery was not made until forty years after the lands were patented, and although such lands have been conveyed to and reconveyed by settlers upon them, who are now in possession thereof. In the suits brought by the government in Nevada the purchasers of land from and grantors of the railroad company have been joined with it as defendant.

The answer of the railroad company is that before patents were issued to it, a survey and examination of the granted lands was made by Federal officials, and patents were issued to it only for lands which were classed as non-mineral bearing. The railroad company asserts that upon the faith and security of the lands granted to it it issued and sold land grant bonds, and the proceeds of sale were used in the construction of the road.

The railroad company contends that the United States by its action in issuing patents thirty years or more ago, for lands then certified by its surveyors and examiners to be non-mineral, equitably estopped itself from now seeking to cancel these patents, because mineral has recently been discovered on the lands.

The proper construction of the land grant act of Congress is, we repeat, a question for the courts alone. No law in the power of a State Legislature to enact can affect the question, for no State can enact ex post facto laws or laws to impair the obligation of contracts. And while it is true that the Constitution of the United States does not in terms inhibit Congress from doing what it prohibits States from doing, yet it is not conceivable that any such power was reserved to Congress or would be exercised by it.

The Times feels a degree of delicacy in giving an opinion on this vexed question. It will be recognized, of course, that any opinion it might express would have great weight with the Supreme Court of the United States, and for that reason it shrinks from the responsibility of swaying the judgment of that august tribunal.

With this we leave the subject humbly, hoping that after perusing this editorial our readers will know more about the controversy than they did before.

JUSTICE WITH MERCY.

Penologists of world-wide reputation are now meeting in Washington at the invitation of the government of this country to discuss, among other things, suggested reforms in prisons and in the way of treating youthful offenders. There are some crimes, like that of which The Times has just been a victim, which, as Theodore Bell said, call for the exaction of "terrible justice." As a general rule, however, the United States, particularly the West, is inclined to go "long" on mercy.

Representatives of some European countries, who recently awoke to the fact that their prison systems needed reforming, came to the United States imbued with the idea that they could teach us a great deal of what they have recently learned on this subject. They have found, however, after a tour which has embraced the East and part of the Middle West, that we are far ahead of them in the practical application of the famous saying, "temper justice with mercy."

Europe has moved slowly in prison reform; we Americans are as up-to-date on that subject as anything else, with a few exceptions. Of course, there are more reforms to be accomplished, even in our own State, but we can do the "pointing with pride" act when it comes to comparing our penal institutions with some in Europe. We must remember, however, that less than a century ago men were hanged across the Atlantic for stealing mutton on the hoof, which gave rise to the expression "one might as well be hung for a sheep as a lamb."

Even since this century opened English boys and girls have been imprisoned for playing football in the streets, for sleeping out in alleys or haylofts and for indulging in "pitch and toss." Across the Atlantic they have been slow in taking up the probationary system and in dealing in a sensible manner with juvenile delinquents. The experts in criminology now in Washington will undoubtedly learn much along these lines while in this country and it is to be hoped they will be able to induce their governments to take up some of the ideas in force here.

NO "HARMLESS" ANARCHY.

We sometimes hear the expression, "Such a one is a mere harmless socialist—a theorist, no more."

The line between theoretical socialism and anarchy is so very fine it does not, in many instances, seem to exist.

The man who indulges his mind in vaporings as to the best way of abolishing the present laboriously attained state of law and equity, may in his own thoughts differentiate between these ideas and actual anarchy, but he cannot draw that line for those who hear and literally translate.

He may in his philosophizing place this demolition of the present order of things in some far away indefinite period of time and place, but the vacuum in the thin brain of the unanchored being who hears is filled with the crazed impetus to rush forth and do. His doing is with bomb and infernal machine, the chosen implements of the coward. The creature that employs these tools cannot be thought of as a human being, for he is below the brute. Compared to him, the assassin who strikes with steel or shot seems almost heroic, for he at least is present when the deed is done; but this other, having set to work a diabolic train, carries into cowardly hiding his own putrid personality.

Back of him, however, more guilty than he, is the brain that set afloat the thought of anarchy; and any thought which tends toward dissolution of those constituted laws that humanity has builded step by step to lift itself above the brute is incipient anarchy.

Better to lay a hindering hand upon progress, better to rest under those laws which we may seem to have outgrown than invite a re-enactment of the French Revolution. He who does not declare himself actively for law, order and sane government civilly and morally is—whether he be conscious of it or not—a possible Mirabeau.

GROWTH OF PASADENA.

The Census Bureau gave out, day before yesterday, the figures for five cities, two on the Pacific Coast. Of the quintette Pasadena easily led in the matter of percentage gain as compared with 1900. In this respect, indeed, the Crown City is at the head of all the cities whose figures have been verified so far.

This city, which is growing so swiftly and marvelously itself, hastens to extend to the growing town between here and the mighty mountains congratulations on the fact that its expectations in the matter of population have been turned into reality. President Taft, when on the Coast recently, showed a great interest in Pasadena, as everybody does who visits there. He asked what the population was in 1900 and was informed that it was below 10,000; to be exact, 9117. "And how much is it now?" he inquired of Mayor Earley. When the latter said 30,000, the President, in the language of the old song, "winked the other eye." He had been hearing that kind of boom talk ever since he had left Washington and struck the great and growing West. He opined that the Mayor would not be really disappointed if the official figures were around the 20,000 mark. Mayor Earley would certainly have been chagrined if the census had shown less than 30,000, despite the President's cheerful attempt to keep him from being too optimistic. He and other leading men of the Crown City, who have kept close tab on the progress made by their much-loved town, were well aware that they were in the 30,000 class and only by error could the census fail to show it.

We may be sure that when the next count of noses is made Pasadena will show remarkable progress. Perhaps the percentage of increase will not be so large but it will be something to be proud of. For the present the charming Crown City can plume itself on the fact that its growth is the most phenomenal of that of any city whose population has thus far been officially made known.

COMRADES.

Into the desert I will dare
My willing foot with you,
If you will give me all my share
Of toil and danger, too.

By the night-fire, beneath the tree
I'll lightly, lightly sleep,
If you will surely waken me,
The second watch to keep.

Exiled, beside you I will stand,
Proud in degraded line,
If the same chain which binds your hand
In tyrant grip, binds mine.

And should fair Fortune send us time
Of ease and mirthful hours,
And sojourn in some genial clime,
'Mid singing birds and flowers;

Then up and down the shores we'll rove,
And up and down the vales.
We'll race the winds a-whirl above,
We'll challenge the swift gales.

In winter-work and summer play,
We'll spend our joy and strength,
Till the soft hand which closes day
Shall lead us home at length.

WORDS OF THE PRESS.

Caused a Thrill of Horror.

To say that the dynamite outrage in Los Angeles has caused a thrill of horror throughout the state and nation, fails to convey an adequate idea of the feeling of the American people in regard to that appalling crime and the cowardly criminals who committed it. For the mere fact that so hideously revolting a deed was possible in Los Angeles, a city of modern civilization, is a terrible revelation to the entire country.

When dynamite is used for the righting of wrongs, real or fancied, the menace of anarchy has drawn very near.

From the information at hand, the conviction is forced that the dynamiting with its frightful results, was not the outcome of a sudden gust of ungovernable rage on the part of some person or persons. The deed seems to have been planned with a diabolical ingenuity that can suggest only a carefully formed conspiracy.—[San Diego Union.

Part of a Conspiracy.

That the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building with the loss of many lives, the attempt to blow up the home of General Otis, proprietor of the Times, of the Times auxiliary plant, and of the home of F. J. Zeehandelaar, an ally of the Times in its warfare on union labor, were all part of a conspiracy resulting from the Times' unfriendliness to union labor, no one will seriously doubt. To condemn union labor as a whole for this dastardly crime, however, or to infer that such deeds are countenanced by labor unions generally, is to assume that the most intelligent classes of workingmen approve murder and assassination. It is absurd to make such an assumption.

Union labor will suffer far more from the Los Angeles outrage than will the Times. That this is so, has been demonstrated in labor disturbances before, and is well understood by the vast majority of labor unionists, particularly in this country.

The entire history of the trouble with the Times has been a blot on intelligent labor unionism. The Times was originally forced into its attitude of hostility to the unions through the domineering and unreasoning policy of the Los Angeles Typographical union. The fight has cost the unions millions of dollars. It has made the Times. It has been a losing fight for the unions always and a winning one for the Times. Why? Simply because public sentiment supported the Times. And no cause can win with public sentiment opposed to it.—Sacramento Union.

A Discredit to Labor Unionism.

It is hoped that the person or persons guilty of causing the destruction of the Los Angeles Times plant this morning, with its attendant loss of life, will be found out and punished to the full extent of the law. It is such acts upon the part of pin-headed union men that have done most to discredit the cause of labor unionism. And in a great many cases such men are influenced by so-called labor union "leaders" who are themselves the greatest enemies of the cause of which they profess to serve.—[Visalia Daily News.

A Deliberate Plot.

The developments in the past 24 hours would indicate quite conclusively that the Los Angeles Times has been the victim of a deliberate dynamite plot, and there are many who are not unwilling to believe that the outrage was planned and fostered by labor union men or their sympathizers. Certain it is that a hideous blot has been stamped upon the cause of organized labor in the West, however much or however little it may be deserved.

Until union labor in Los Angeles is freed of the suspicion of stain of the innocent blood of twenty American workmen, it can hope for little public consideration. The fight that General Otis has made for what he has termed "industrial freedom" will gain more through the crippling of the Times by the use of dynamite than it could possibly have gained through all the argument of the editorial pages of the Otis paper for years to come. Undoubtedly will mean victory for the open shop in Los Angeles; and the effect will reach far beyond the boundaries of that city.—[Santa Barbara Morning Press.

A Personal Disaster.

While the Arizona Gazette has always agreed with the editorial policy of the Los Angeles Times, the fullest sympathy of this paper is extended to the proprietors of that journal in an unfortunate hour.

The great loss of life and the destruction of property is deplorable. As a disseminator of world news, the Times ranks as one of the greatest newspapers in the United States, and every reader who has looked to the Times for a full report of current events, state, national and international, will feel a sense of personal loss.—[Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette.

Most Horrifying Act.

It may never be definitely known whether the destruction of the plant of the Los Angeles Times yesterday morning and the killing of more than a score of employes was a great disaster or an outrage. If the latter it was the most horrifying act of terrorism ever committed in this country.

General Otis for a score of years had waged a relentless war against organized labor. This fight has been more bitter against the striking iron-workers, who are believed to have been guilty of similar outrages and who are known to have been guilty of some outrages.

The management of The Times had received many anonymous letters threatening the very thing that was brought to pass, so that unless ample proof to the contrary is forthcoming it will be believed that these threats have been executed.

Another and perhaps more convincing proof that the explosion was the result of design was the discovery yesterday of two other bombs, one at the residence of General Otis and another so timed as to explode at the precise moment that The Times office was blown up. Altogether, the preponderance of evidence is in favor of an outrage rather than a disaster.—[Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican.

Work of Degraded Unionites.

The public was shocked this morning with the news of the awful catastrophe that has occurred to the Los Angeles Times. Knowledge of the contest between The Times and union labor naturally forces the opinion that the disaster was the work of inflamed and degraded union men or their sympathizers. The latest reports also indicate that this theory is correct.

The sympathy of the world goes out to the families of those who have lost their lives and to those who have been injured in this awful thing, and to General Harrison Gray Otis, proprietor, and to his son-in-law, Harry Chandler, manager of The Times. This outrage places them on a pinnacle of marytrydom for freedom in industry, the right of every human being to work where and when and for whom he pleases, without let or hindrance from any trust of labor or capital. While the calamity is awful to contemplate, yet it will wonderfully advance the cause of free labor and prove a setback to union agitation for a long time to come. The world will not stand for wholesale murder, rapine and arson and any movement that either causes or leads to such things must go down.—[Santa Barbara Independent.

A Dastardly Crime.

The dynamite bomb is no argument to use in free America, and the misguided individuals who blew up the Times building will find that out to their sorrow. We do not hold the labor unions as organizations responsible for this awful crime; but it is true that some of the unions have tolerated the membership in their ranks of an anarchistic element that was capable of almost any act of violence. Some individuals of that class are probably responsible for this outrage. This act will stir up hostility to the unions that it will take a generation to remove. In our judgment, the cause of labor unionism has been set back a quarter of a century by this terrible tragedy.—[Riverside Daily Press.

Unionism Will Stand Convicted.

If the investigation now under way proves that dynamite was used then labor unionism will naturally stand convicted, even though the atrocious crime may have been committed by a fanatic; and the cause of labor as expressed by unionism will be set back at least a quarter century.—Riverside Enterprise.

An Infamous Deed.

The men who were responsible for the wholesale destruction of human life by the dynamiting of The Times building in Los Angeles will receive their just reward, if it is possible to punish such murderers. The thugs who perpetrated that fiendish act cannot escape, as the whole nation will be alert for their apprehension.—Phoenix (Ariz) Democrat.

It would not surprise us at all to have the "seeing Niagara" power boat take you down the rapids and through the whirlpool for a nickel within the next year. Things are coming fast from every direction.

We extend an unlimited letter of credit to the visiting bankers of our hospitality. Identification at the window is not necessary.

Pasadena with its increase in population of over two hundred per cent. is "getting to be a big girl, now."

The prices of the new crop of coffee are to be advanced, say the market reports. It is probable that somebody needs the money.

We met a lady on Broadway the other day who had such fussy hair that we imagine she had treated it with an egg-beater.

To Appreciative People.

Quickly succeeding the great calamity which has fallen upon us of the Los Angeles Times through the wicked agencies of dynamite and fire and the desperation of deliberate assassination, a vast volume of sympathy, deep and true, has reached us, coming by wire, by mail, and through oral expression. For all these expressions of sympathy and friendship the conductors and proprietors of The Times are profoundly grateful. The number of messages received is so great that it is impossible to respond to all of them separately, so we are compelled to resort to this public method of making our grateful acknowledgments.

We are not forgetting our friends, and cannot forget them in this hour of trial, any more than we can forget the faithful slain.

The Times building and its great equipment have been destroyed by the hands of conspirators and assassins, and more than a score of its faithful workers lie dead, beneath the charred and blackened ruins of the old citadel which they so faithfully defended in the strenuous days when life, hope, vigor and determination equipped them so well for the battle. Our faithful men are dead, but The Times itself lives and will live on. It cannot be destroyed; it will go on fighting the old battle with even greater determination than before; it will continue to uphold the sacred cause of republican liberty and industrial freedom which it has so long upheld, and we, its foremost defenders, will not be found wanting should the demands of the future put us to the test.

In good time The Times building will be restored, wall upon wall, stone upon stone, brick upon brick, and column upon column, and will be re-equipped with a mechanical plant even more complete than before. And so the battle will be carried on in the future by brave hearts and strong hands.

The Times has received numerous offers of financial assistance, but, fortunately, is not under the necessity of accepting them. We will, however, be grateful for further contributions to the strong relief fund which is being created for the benefit of the families of the slain.

DISCUSSIONS ON SOIL SHOW FARMERS ARE ALERT.

Responses Indicate High Intelligence, and Speeches Proclaim Cosmopolitan Character of Men Who Keep Abreast of the Times On Agricultural Matters.

Outgrowing in a single session the hall on the third floor of the Chamber of Commerce building, the Soil Convention yesterday was compelled to seek more commodious quarters, the result being that all of its sessions are now held at Blanchard Hall.

With more than 400 deeply interested land proprietors in attendance yesterday, both morning and afternoon sessions were extremely interesting.

More than fifty persons addressed the convention briefly o nthe subject of "cover crop. This subject had to do with cow peas, barley, vetch and alfalfa, and the hearty way in which the farmers entered the discussion went far in proving that Southern California landowners can think of other things than the splendidly remunerative citrus fruits. Green manures and commercial fertilizers for all of these crops were considered, and a large percentage of the intelligent speakers had interesting experiences with which to illustrate their remarks.

Of course, no agreement could very well be reached between many of the participants in the discussion, for the reason that each man's soil presented a different problem which he had met in his own way. Nevertheless, the discussion reflected light upon the subject from numerous angles of practical advantage.

The floor was never vacant for a minute. The instant one speaker took a seat another was on his feet. Every second of the allotted hour for discussion was utilized, and if this is to be the spirit of the conventios, the result will be a splendid education in the knowledge of soils. It is like a camp meeting or like a feverish interest with which the farmers in the East once took to the granger idea.

One feature which would greatly interest an eastern visitor is the cosmopolitan appearance of the audience. Every man in it is a farmer who dresses and speaks like a college president or a lawyer. A Legislature could not be more representative.

Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, having been called from the city by the illness of his wife, his place on the programme was taken by Dr. C. B. Lipman, who was to have occupied only a part of the morning.

His subject was "The soil as a culture medium." This was made to include the relation of temperature, moisture and air, and also plant food, in the matter of bacterial development. He divided practical soil bacteria into two general classes. In one, the nitrates are changed to a soluble and available element while, in the other, the nitrogen of the air is so refined and reduced as to be used by the plant. The first changes the protein to ammonia and then to nitrites and nitrates. The second, feeds the roots of leguminous plants.

In the afternoon the discussion of the "cover" crops was followed by a strong, clear address by Dr. F. H. King on the development and maintenance of good physical soil conditions. Dr. King's address was received with interest, and Prof. J. H. Norton then spoke out of a wide experience and thorough technical knowledge on the management of citrus orchards during spring and summer.

Each day of the convention Prof. Norton will have some vital topic in citrus experimentation to discuss. As many of those in attendance are engaged solely in citrus culture, this is a subject that cannot be given too much attention.

At today's sessions Dr. Lipman will speak on the ammonification, nitrification, and denitrification of soil bacteria; Dr. King will discuss the functions and the duty of water in crop production, and Prof. Norton's discussion will continue the line on which he spoke yesterday. The exhibition of disc cultivators made yesterday will be continued today.

An interesting feature of the exhibition at Blanchard Hall is that of the Commercial Fertilizers and different California soils with the percentage of their composition. In soils they have everything from the sands of the Mojave desert to the richest loams and clays of Imperial Valley.

In fertilizers they have varieties ranging from dried blood, with 14 per cent. of nitrogen and no phosphoric acid to some of the bone floats, containing 2 per cent. of nitrogen and 26 per cent. of phosphoric acids. They also show all of the mineral forms of potash, as well as the sulphates and muriates.

At some hour today, President Wheeler of the University of California, under the auspices of which the present convention is held, will be present to address the assembly.

The petitioners assert that they have the patents for the bed and that Sheriff and Smith have made $10,000 profit out of its manufacture.

A few minutes after he had been released on bail from the East Side jail yesterday morning, C. Peterson charged with picketing, was rearrested on another warrant charging him with a similar offense. THEY'RE BOTH ARRESTED.

W. J. DeLong and H. E. Counts, a street car conductor, who had each other arrested after having had a disagreement on an Inglewood car, were fined $10 by Justice Baird, yesterday.

Real Estate "Liners"

Limited business and composition capacity require the printing of the real estate "Liner" sheet of the Sunday Times on Saturday afternoon—classified real estate copy for Sunday insertion must therefore be in The Times office not later than Friday night.

The indulgence and patience of advertisers in these matters is earnestly requested by The Times management in this stressful period. Soon the mechanical plant of the office will be replenished. Until then, it will be a valuable assistance to The Times to be furnished with early Sunday copy by advertisers.

IMPORTANT BARGAIN.

OIL CONTRACT ENTERED INTO.

UNION-INDEPENDENTS AND THE ASSOCIATED AGREE.

LATTER WILL BE THE FORMER'S MARKETING AGENT.

NO PRICE NAMED, THREE YEARS IS THE PERIOD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The negotiations between the Union-Independents and the Associated Oil Company, on which the eyes of California oil men have been fixed for weeks, ended yesterday in the signing, by L. P. St Clair for the former and W. S. Porter for the latter, of one of the most important contracts ever entered into on this coast. The essential features are as follows:

The Union-Independents make the Associated Oil Company the marketing agent for their unsold oil, and the Associated agrees to use its best endeavors to sell this oil on advantageous contracts.

The Union-Independents are to retain all their present business. The Associated is to retain all its present business. All new business taken under the contracts to be made by the Associated is to be assigned to the Union-Independents until such time as the volume of sales of the latter equal the volume of sales of the Associated. Thereafter the business—which is to say, the contracts for the sale of oil—is to be divided equally between the Union-Independents and the Associated. The latter is to receive a commission of 10 per cent on all sales of oil for the Union-Independents.

All contemplated sales by the Associated as marketing agent are to be submitted to the Union-Independents for approval before execution. On execution, the contracts taken by the Associated are to be at once assigned to the Union.

All deliveries of oil are to be made by means of the Union-Independent facilities, which means through the Producers' Transportation Company's pipe line and the Union tank steamers, wherever practicable.

In a separate contract between the same parties, the Associated agrees to purchase from the Union-Independents any oil needed by the former for application to its own business or to fill its obligations as purchasing agent for other concerns, in excess of its own productions.

RUNS FOR THREE YEARS.

Attached to the contracts are memorandums submitted by each of the parties, showing the contracts now held by each. These memoranda will be the basis of the division of future business as provided by the first of the two contracts.

The contract runs for three years.

There is nothing in either contract which fixes the price of oil on future sales or any understanding to keep up the price of oil further than an agreement by the Associated to make sales on the most advantageous terms possible.

Nothing in the contracts prevents the independent agency from receiving new oil companies as members, and it is stated on authority that there is not likely to be any change in the past policy of the agency in this respect.

The contracts do not provide for the interchange of storage and transportation facilities between the two parties but it is understood that this will be one of the practical effects of the new arrangements and that hereafter the Producers' and Associated pipe lines, the Producers' and Associated storage and the Union and Associated steamers will be used indiscriminately to the best advantage, irrespective of the origin of the oil to be handled.

At the present time the Associated handles about 70 per cent of the oil sold on this coast, it produces about 14 per cent, buys about 19 per cent, and has a deficit of about 37 per cent. This deficit will be filled by Union-Independent oil.

In a resolution unanimously adopted yesterday the Agriculturists of California, assembled in a Soil Convention, called by Prof. E. J. "Be it further resolved: That we tender to the relatives of those martyred employees that perished at their post of duty our deepest sympathy at this time, and

Around The World
By the "OFFICE BOY"

At Allahabad one gets up at dawn and drives out to the Fort just beyond which the sacred rivers, Ganges and Jumna, join. The road is always crowded with pilgrims of both sexes, who have come from all over India. Some of them have been months on their way, plodding patiently along in the heat and dust, worn, poor, hungry, but supported and sustained by an unwavering faith and belief; they were supremely happy and content now; their full and sufficient reward was at hand—they were going to be cleansed from every vestige of sin and corruption by these holy waters, which make utterly pure whatever thing they touch. It is wonderful, the power of a faith like that. Two million natives are said to arrive at this sacred spot every year. How many start and die on the road from age fatigue, disease and scant nourishment, and how many die on the return from the same causes, no one knows. It is all done in love or done in fear—I do not know which. No matter what the impulse is, it is marvelous to our kind of people—the cold whites.

One of the principal troubles in our country is that one runs across so many men who seem to have joined some lodge chiefly to acquire a good working knowledge of the distress signals.

Why not look on the bright side of some of our neckties? We have them to harmonize with every suit, every shirt, every mind. Yes, even every mood. For 50c and 75c we offer you neckwear which we honestly believe can't be duplicated elsewhere for $1.00. No trouble to show them.

FIFTEEN BODIES.

a skeleton. Beside the body was found the only possible means of ever identifying it—a gold seal ring, on the inner face of which is graven the maker's name, C. S. or C. L. Roth.

Fifteen bodies have thus far been taken out of the debris, and six, if not seven, still lie under the heavy mass of ruins.

Shortly after midnight the searchers located the charred and twisted remains of Charles Haggerty among the piles of debris. The victim was employed as a pressman, and when found the blackened bones of his right hand were closed over the handle of a heavy wrench. The body was found a short distance from the gigantic press, now a ruined mass, and was evidently struck down, ere he had an opportunity to escape. The flesh was burned from the entire body, but unlike the other remains found, the torso, limbs and arms were intact. It was immediately taken in charge by Bresee Brothers, and removed to their morgue.

PLACING A GREAT DERRICK.

Ninety structural steel workers from the Baker Iron Works arrived at The Times building ruins last night and worked all night to get in place the gigantic boom derrick furnished by the company to be used in taking out the steel work of the ruined building.

President Fred L. Baker and Vice-President M. A. Baker remained on the ground until morning, personally supervising the work of erection. In this they were assisted by Louis Pinning, superintendent of construction at the Alexandria Annex, and H. L. Smith, who occupies a similar position on the North-Broadway bridge job.

Though the company is under contract to complete the Broadway bridge within a specified time and time is precious, they had no hesitation in stopping the work there in order to allow the derrick to be taken to The Times building. Twenty-two men were taken from the bridge work, the rest being from different jobs over the city.

Early this morning, when it is expected that the derrick will be ready for work, power will be turned on the new trolley wires on North Broadway and cars will be run in beside the ruins to receive the wreckage directly. It is thought that from now on the work of clearing the pit will proceed with more rapidity, since the workmen will no longer be hampered by the presence of great steel beams scattered everywhere over the building.

BUSINESS MEN BACK INCREASE.

PRESENT EMERGENCY DEMANDS EXTRA PATROLMEN.

Chamber of Commerce, Through President, Requests Appointment Two Hundred More Men— Necessity Exists Because "Assassins Are Abroad"—Ordinance To Provide For Fifty.

Joseph Scott and Walter J. Trask yesterday presented to the City Council the request of the Chamber of Commerce for the appointment of at least 200 more patrolmen, to meet the present emergency.

Scott said that he came to represent the views of at least 2000 men—men of affairs.

"It is true," he said, "there has been no disorder, but assassins are abroad in the land, and it is necessary that help be extended to the Police Department, where the men are working from twelve to fifteen hours a day. It is not only this awful disaster that has occurred that makes demand for more protection, but the bombs that were laid at the homes of men living in the outlying districts by persons who are not men but fiends, call for better protection for the homes of the community at large.

"What may have been all right a month ago is not all right now. Los Angeles is now on the map of the uncivilized world. The outrage was the greatest ever committed in the United States, and we should meet the situation seriously, promptly and efficiently.

"The Chamber of Commerce authorizes me to come here and say that it will stand back of you in this matter, and it is composed of the biggest taxpayers in the city. Unless we can have the assurance of safety of human life, all other things go for naught."

Trask, from the same body, said:

"We come not alone because of the Los Angeles horror that startled the world on last Saturday, but also because of the outrages that are being committed upon men and women on the streets of the city. Gentlemen, this city is not properly policed; a new situation has arisen. The awful disaster of last Saturday is one that would make an ordinary anarchist blush with shame. Every morning we read of things that occur on our streets almost every night, that make the blood run cold. The emergency demands prompt and decisive action to help the police department."

Councilmen Gregory and Stewart expressed themselves as in thorough sympathy with all that had been said, and were in favor of granting the increase asked for by the Chamber of Commerce.

A conference was held at the close of the morning session with the Mayor and Chief of Police, and the matter was then placed in the hands of the City Attorney, who, in conference with the Mayor and the Chief of Police, was instructed to bring in an ordinance at a special session of the Council to be held this afternoon, embodying the decision of the committee of the whole.

It is understood that they did not see their way clear to direct appointment of 200 additional patrolmen, but that the ordinance, when presented today, will provide for fifty emergency patrolmen and a number of sergeants.

Another ordinance will be offered at the same time, making formal provision for the reward offered for the discovery and conviction of the assassins who committed the crime Saturday morning.

KIND HEARTS.

PLAYERS TURN TO SUFFERERS.

MONSTER THEATRICAL BENEFIT FOR MARTYR-FAMILIES.

Managers Association Acts Unanimously, and Great Testimonial Will Be Given October 20—Ferris, Who Had Independent Benefit Under Way, Will Co-operate.

What will be, according to plans, the biggest theatrical benefit ever held in Southern California, is to be given at the Auditorium on the afternoon of October 20.

The entire proceeds will be devoted to the families of the martyrs of The Times Building holocaust. No part of this or any testimonial fund will be accepted by The Times-Mirror Company.

At a meeting of the Managers Association of Los Angeles, held yesterday afternoon in the office of President William T. Wyatt, it was unanimously decided to devote the time of the individual managers and the resources of all the theaters to this end.

The houses represented are the Hamburger Majestic, the Auditorium, the Mason, the Burbank, the Orpheum, the Grand Operahouse, the Los Angeles and Pantages. The managers are Messrs. Morosco, Wyatt, Drown, Behymer, Hartman, Donellan and Johnson.

Dick Ferris was already in the field, promoting an independent benefit. He had made plans for auctioning boxes and seats, and had already secured publicity, though the matter of date and attractions had not been settled.

When informed of the plans of the Managers Association, last evening, he averred that he would concur gladly in anything this organization had to offer, and would immediately cease his good will efforts for a "rival show."

Mr. Morosco, of the Association, stated that he would be pleased if Mr. Ferris would accept the position of stage manager and general promoter of the affair.

A meeting between them will occur this morning.

Two high-class vaudeville acts will be represented from each of the three vaudeville theaters—Pantages, the Los Angeles and the Orpheum.

The Majestic will present an act from Savage's all-star revival of "The Prince of Pilsen." Ferris Hartman will give an act of his opening bill. The Mason, Auditorium and Burbank will offer excerpts from their current attractions.

It is likely that the stage manager will have to eliminate rather than build up his bill, for already there have been many proffers from professional people.

"It is the idea to provide a fast and continuous round of high-class entertainment from 1 o'clock to 6," said Mr. Morosco yesterday. "We will use acts enough for that—and we can't use any more."

Boxes and the choicest single seats will be sold at auction, and possibly the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and the Chamber of Commerce will co-operate at an assembly where the sale can be made profitably.

Mayor Alexander yesterday addressed an open letter to the newspapers—a letter inspired by the Ferris propaganda. The writer said: "It has been suggested that it might be well to have a theatrical benefit for the sufferers from the recent catastrophe at The Times building. Mr. Dick Ferris informs me that he thinks he can secure, free of charge, one of the theaters here, and that the actors and actresses will be glad to donate their services, so that every cent that is taken in will go to the sufferers. I heartily recommend that this be done, and that the papers play up the matter as well as they can."

CUT AND ROBBED.

While walking on Ducommun street about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, J. Ogi, 21 years old, a Japanese, was attacked by two men and slightly cut. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital. Robbery was the motive of the attack, but the highwaymen got only a small amount. Ogi is a farmer, living at No. 235 Jackson street, Gardena.

Afternoon Wedding.

In the garden of the John W. The bride-elect has for years been a close friend of Mrs. Mitchell and her niece, Miss Dorothy Parry-Jones. The wedding was one of the most impressive of the season. A huge ball of jasmine blossoms was hung from a flowering shrub, and there the bridal party stood. At the close of the ceremony, which was read by the Rev. McKenzie, little John and Eunice Mannheim pulled ribbon streamers which showered petals from the flower upon the bride and groom. White satin veiled with white chiffon and trimmed with Duchesse lace, together with a long tulle veil and a boquet of lily of the valley completed the bridal robe. Miss Evelyn Chapman, of Chapman Place, San Gabriel, assisted as maid of honor. She wore an imported creation of white material. Her bouquet was of white blossoms. Facts, Features and Fan

BY OLIVE GRA

The Japanese have a belief or a "superstition" as we are in the habit of calling that which we do not understanding or subscribe to, that there is a bond of fate between all persons who come in contact in life. Even those who passing each other upon the street, touch kimono sleeves, they believe have in some past life held some relation with each other. This way of looking at things lifts all the relations of life out of the casual and lends to them a deeper meaning. According to this belief, our simplest acts are strung like beads upon an indestructible thread leading from past to future.

As we begin to realize that many times the most trifling acts and circumstances lead to great events, it does begin to seem as though nothing in life were casual or unimportant.

Since the awful events of last Friday it has been especially impressed upon those who have worked together under one great managment in The Times office, that such relations as exist among a working force are fraught with a meaning far deeper than can be estimated.

These relations which seem to be but for each day's achievement along the highway of the struggle for existence are in reality so broad and deep and high that they must in any great emergency extend beyond all limits.

It was a wonderful thing that before the smoke had cleared away after the awful disaster which had destroyed The Times building, every individual who was left had, without a word from any one marshaled himself at the new headquarters, ready to give without stint, all of his vitality to whatever work was to come. Still more wonderful was the fact, that, without command, each fell to doing his accustomed kind of work, as methodically as though nothing has occurred. Each individual was like some member of a body trained to some achievement, the fingers, the hands, the head—all went about their especial accomplishments under the inaudible command of some higher power which might be likened to what Maeterlink has called "the spirit of the hive."

What Is This Spirit?

In this case it was not alone trained and disciplined work in all departments, for discipline however strong is apt to disintegrate under such great stress. It was something more than mere training that brought together that band of workers on the morning after the disaster. It was the personal power of the great leaders which had so permeated the entire working force as to arouse in it that strongest of human qualities, unswerving loyalty.

That great power consists in appreciation of the fact, whether it form a part of religious philosophy or is there tenet of the individual mind, that all the relations of life, however seemingly slight, are important and that they call for something higher than the mere payment of a stated toil.

If all this be true in business organization, how much more simply and certainly is it true of the domestic relations.

I have sometimes marveled at the light regard with which some women as the head of homes, have held the welfare of those "strangers within their gates," the humble servants who care for their own and their families' comfort. This relation, in which interdependence is so avoidable, would naturally seem to be the very place for the growth of the strongest possible ties and many times it is so. That it is not ever be otherwise, is beyond my understanding. Every occurrence in the outside world centers at last in the home. No one knows the hour when trying events will call for the staunchest qualities of the human heart. What a fatal lack if these are wanting in any who are at this center:

As we begin to realize that many times the most trifling acts and circumstances lead to great events, it does begin to seem as though nothing in life were casual or unimportant.

Since the awful events of last Friday it has been especially impressed upon those who have worked together under one great managment in The Times office, that such relations as exist among a working force are fraught with a meaning far deeper than can be estimated.

These relations which seem to be but for each day's achievement along the highway of the struggle for existence are in reality so broad and deep and high that they must in any great emergency extend beyond all bounds.

It was a wonderful thing that before the smoke had cleared away after the awful disaster which had destroyed The Times building, every individual who was left had, without a word from any one marshaled himself at the new headquarters, ready to give without stint, all of his ability to whatever work was to be done. Still more wonderful was the fact, that, without command, each fell to doing his accustomed kind of work, as methodically as though nothing has occurred. Each individual was like some member of a body trained to some achievement, the eyes, the hands, the head—all went about their especial accomplishments under the inaudible command of some higher power which might be likened to what Maeterlinck has called "the spirit of the hive."

What Is This Spirit?

In this case it was not alone trained and disciplined work in all departments, for discipline however strong is apt to disintegrate under such great stress. It was something more than mere training that brought together that band of workers on the morning after the disaster. It was the personal power of the great leaders which had so permeated the entire working force as to arouse in it that strongest of human qualities, unswerving loyalty.

That great power consists in appreciation of the fact, whether it form part of religious philosophy or is mere tenet of the individual mind, that all the relations of life, however seemingly slight, are important and that they call for something higher than the mere payment of a stated sum.

If all this be true in business organizations, how much more simply and certainly is it true of the domestic relations.

I have sometimes marveled at the total disregard with which some women at the head of homes, have held the welfare of those "strangers within their gates," the humble servants who care for their own and their families' comfort. This relation, in which interdependence is so avoidable, would naturally seem to be the very place for the growth of the strongest possible love and many times it is so. That it is not ever be otherwise, is beyond my understanding. Every occurrence in the outside world centers at last in the home. No one knows the hour when trying events will call for the highest qualities of the human heart. What a fatal lack if those are lacking in any who are at this center!

I always respect the woman who has within her walls, loyal and ready "help;" and I cannot but feel that there is some defect in that one who complains that she never has a faithful servant. It seems to me that here, perhaps more than in any place in life, giving is getting. I cannot think that in the first place it is right to harbor in the close relations of the home persons who do not respond to qualities in their commanders, and given such, they should be so treated that they will continue to respond.

Home Comforting.

Sometimes women are inclined to feel that mere home-keeping is a limited mission; but when we think how much of comfort and refreshment is found within a well-ordered home and when we realize that after all that which most men are toiling for is to bring welfare and beauty into the home, it does not seem that the mission of supervising the final employment of the riches gained by strife out in the world is an insignificant mission

In fact I am inclined to agree with a local speaker in one of the public schools who said that the great question of our day is not so much how to earn money as how to judiciously expend it in the home. How to secure the best results in food, clothing and beauty for the home. Beauty in the home is quite as essential as the food or clothing, for the eye, the mind, the soul itself needs the refreshment which is found in beholding beauty. Nature herself has set her seal upon beauty as a necessary part of the world's equipment and has placed even in her remotest nooks her own kind of loveliness

AN ICONOCLAST.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE FASHION SHOW ON AN UNFASHIONABLE WOMAN.

By Mrs. Fred DuValle.

Yes, I went to the Fashion Show. I was smart, too. I took an early car on Monday morning and came to gaze before the streets got so crowded and the windows obscured. There was only one drawback to my plan and that was the fact that exactly nine thousand five hundred and sixty-eight women were seized with the selfsame bright notion and each one looked surprised and grieved to find that she did not have the street all to herself.

The windows, when I could see through the gaps in the crowd, impressed me as being very artistic and however one might deplore the extravagant styles, the colors and textures in which they were displayed were marvelous softeners of hideous realities. What I took to be a modification of the hobble gown was shown in materials of such clinging mistiness that they took away much of the startling effect and—well they didn't look "so damn bad," but, Oh, lawk Sary! Some of the 'ats! There were more cornucopias and beehives and hay stacks and mushrooms and Cossack turbans and Dutch bonnets than we have yet been inflicted with and brimless frights and frightless brims and flatter-than-pancakes and—Oh, I couldn't begin to mention 'em all—I haven't acquired a sufficiently unique vocabulary. They cost aplenty no doubt (tag, Pa, you're it) and many an eighty dollar monstrosity will be perched above a forty dollar chignon and the wearer thereof will be happy until the sight of one of her sisters with a head-riggen a little more hideous than her own and consequently "smahtah" casts a gloom over her soul.

Now about these styles—it seems to me that when they are imitated in the cheaper materials which are within reach of the average pocketbook they are going to look—punk! One woman in a hundred will become them and she's the kind that would look charming in any old rag. But we'll all wear them—Oh, yes—even the simple village maiden will hurry the rural dressmaker until she produces a startling creation of green balmoral with a plaid delaine band about the skirt where the hobble should be.

I saw such bits of incongruity even among the women of apparent good circumstances so early in the season. One woman of the big, buxom, florid type wore a black velvet hat of the mushroom variety having soft hanging frills of embroidered chiffon, the top a mass of waving black plumes and the whole hat accentuating the hard cold fact of middle age writ largely upon her countenance. Another with a complexion of the hard shininess of a Baldwin apple wore a turban of champagne colored velvet banded about the face with baby blue and trimmed with a bunch of baby blue plumes.

"Oh, wad the power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as ithers see us," we might be spared the sight of—these and—

A woman with no chin to speak of wearing a wide ruche.

The girl with big feet, a short dress and high white shoes.

The short female—a double skirt which cuts her already scant height in two.

Another having bony ankles—pumps and big bows

The fat woman—a baggy blouse and belts the color of her skirt.

Another fat woman—plaids.

A woman built like a filet de sole—stripes. And there are others which I won't mention lest I be deemed personal.

The tailor-made girl is a rare and beautiful sight these days. I saw one who made me think of a bit of sunshine on autumn leaves. She was dressed in a yellowish linen suit with a plain white waist and a mannish tie. She wore brown shoes and brownish yellow gloves and her plain sailor hat was encircled about with a Persian band of soft yellows and browns. Quite a contrast to the girl garbed from head to foot in black that focussed the rays of the sun like a burning glass and looked so very uncomfortable.

To me most well-dressed and especially the over-dressed woman seem conscious of but one thing and that is her clothes and the impression they may be making on the public as she passes along the street. Would that we might wear clothing of the simplicity of men's, put them on and forget about them. Perhaps this woman then would be able to remember that there is a world outside of herself and her costumes; that "swell" garments are a poor thing to strive for, a poor thing to judge one's sister by, that her neighbor's heart may hold a sorrow which a few moments pleasant conversation on her part might lighten somewhat; that beside her sitting in awed admiration of her finery there may be a woman whose horizon is bounded by the petty, narrow soul-grasping grind of making a meager income meet large demands; who never knows the joy of going into a store and picking things out for herself; who is hastily clothed out of the leavings of time and money after all the other members of the family are provided for and give her something kinder than the supercilious comprehensive glance which sweeps her from her worn old shoes to the pitifully bedraggled feather in her unbecoming old hat. I don't believe you mean to do it—you don't think—that's all.

Perhaps you saw her at the show gazing wistfully and interestedly into the windows and extracting what joy she could from the display with two or three children hanging to her skirts.

I saw another mother there also and she was a pleasanter sight than this one. She was old, but she evidently had a good son who supported her feeble strength on his strong arm and paused by the windows to gaze with her and amuse her by original masculine comments upon the unique styles displayed within.

Again she was only Ma—stout and flushed—very ample as to waist, tight as to hair and crooked as to hat. But taking in the scene with a jolly whole-souled enjoyment of something that was odd and pretty to look at, but never intended for her. Just the kind of a dear old Ma who can get up some of the finest meals in all the world; who jams her table from one end to another with good things and keeps urging them upon you until hand and button nature protest against any further stuffing.

She was the most refreshing figure along Broadway; and when you gazed from her to the simpering artificiality on the other side of the glass, you thanked God for the bit of homely genuineness displayed in her face and figure and tight little wad of hair.

Yes, Me and Mother and Ma were all at the Fashion Show. Pa was there, too, slinking around on the edges with a discouraged look, and one of us went home and dug out her winter before-winter-last's head gear wondering how she could make a little pinched-up affair of silk and velvet resemble a magnified flapjack which she saw on Broadway, until at last she gave it up and went to bed discouraged.

POPULATION MOVEMENT TO MONROVIA BREAKS RECORD

Building of Two Scenic Boulevards by Good Roads Commission Causes Unexpected Demand for Suburban Homes.

Pacific Electric Will Care for Growth by Improved Road Bed and Quick Service for Business Men.

HOUSES FILLING UP TWO MONTHS EARLIER THAN USUAL

It anyone doubted the general popularity of Good Roads, the experience of Monrovia will remove any further doubts.

This suburb was fortunate in getting two of the boulevards being constructed through the county's $3,600,000 bond issue. The section is especially typical of southern California, on account of the mountain background, orange groves and shaded avenues.

One of the good roads will be known as "The Foothill Boulevard;" skirting the picturesque foothills from Pasadena eastward. The other will be an extension of "Huntington Drive," notable for its many fine homes.

While neither of these is yet constructed, auto enthusiasts are picking up suburban homes in Monrovia before real estate prices are affected.

Bank reports, postal receipts and school attendance point to a remarkable increase in population. Two classes of people are chiefly represented, business men of Los Angeles who like the peculiar charm of being near the mountains, and retired people who enjoy the outdoor attractions of soil, view and climate.

It was foreseen over twelve months ago that the foothill country adjacent to Los Angeles was in line for a period of great activity. The building of homes in Monrovia had become so active that the movement itself was attracting homeseekers.

As is the case in eastern cities, when a metropolis reaches a certain stage of development, a large part of the better element seeks homes in the suburbs where the moral tone of schools and neighborhoods is better than a big city affords.

The Pacific Electric, apparently, was the first to realize this, and the result is the construction of a four-track road bed nearly all the way to Monrovia. Monrovia cars will run on the two inside tracks, and make no local stops, thus carrying business men in comfortable, well lighted cars to their suburban homes in less time than city cars reach the outskirts of Los Angeles.

Monrovia provides every city convenience, without dust, fog and noise.

The service at Monrovia stores is naturally more satisfactory, there being more personal attention to customers.

Gas, electricity, telephones, pure mountain water, schools, churches, clubs and thirty miles of magnificent paved streets with great shade trees.

This announcement is made under the auspices of the Monrovia Board of Trade, with a view of guiding homeseekers. The present great movement of population forecasts a period of growth that will focus the attention of all Southern California on "Monrovia." It is evident that it is a great advantage to get located now.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

OIL MEN TAKE STRONG STAND

RESOLUTIONS DEMAND THAT JUSTICE BE DONE.

RUSH TO LOST HILLS FIELD IS ON IN EARNEST.

GENERAL NEWS OF INTEREST FROM OIL FIELDS.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the California Oil Men's Association, held last week at Bakersfield, the headquarters of the association, the following resolutions, as expressing the views of the oil men of the State, were adopted:

"Resolved, that it is the belief of the California Oil Men's Association that the action on the part of the Commissioner of the General Land Office is unfair and unjust to the oil operators of California, and that said commissioner be importuned to adhere to the established customs of the past ten years, at least until due notice has been given by the commissioner of a required change in the method of locating, developing and patenting of oil lands, such change to be effective at a date subsequent to this day.

"Resolved, that the California Oil Men's Association importune the President of the United States to restore to entry those lands which were located in good faith prior to the date when the said withdrawal order became effective, and which the owners have proceeded with reasonable diligence to develop, and be it further

"Resolved, that the attention of the president be directed to the fact that the uncertainty caused by the said withdrawals seriously handicapped the locators of said claims in many instances and prevented them from proceeding as vigorously with the development of said claims as they otherwise would have, and that this fact be considered in determining what constitutes reasonable diligence."

It is believed that the Board of Governors of the California Oil Men's Association was constrained to adopt the foregoing resolutions because of the belief that an effort would be made to present other views as coming from the California oil men to the American Mining Congress. The resolutions meet the views of the men who are operating on unpatented lands, and who have already expended large sums of money in endeavoring to secure oil.

DEAL IN OIL LANDS.
VALLECITOS DISTRICT.

A large deal in the oil lands of the Vallecitos district took place yesterday, when G. A. Sarber et al, sold to M. E. Foster, approximately 3000 acres in townships 16 and 17, ranges 11 and 12 north. The consideration was not given. It is understood that Mr. Foster will begin active development on the property at once.

This land adjoins in part the property of the Range 16 Oil Company, of which J. C. McCormack is president and John M. Fairfield, secretary. This company is drilling its first well with an extra heavy standard rig, and is starting in with 15 1-2 inch casing, weighing seventy pounds to the foot. A. Lindberger, long with the Union and Associated oil companies, is in charge of operations.

In the same field the Standard Investment Company, of which Ralph Arnold is a member, has leased to A. J. Clark the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 12, 17-11. The latter will at once begin sinking a well on the lease.

HIKING TO LOST HILLS.
OIL MEN ON THE RUN.

Renewed interest in the whole Devil's Den oil district is apparent since the strike of light gravity oil in the Lost Hills at a depth of only 500 feet. Because residents of Visalia were the ones to make the first strike, that town was the first one to become thoroughly aroused over the possibilities of the new district.

However, the fever has now reached Bakersfield and other towns in the northern fields, and the exodus to the Lost Hills is on with all the concomitants of a boom. Within the last few days hundreds of Kern county men have either visited the district in person or have had their emissaries on the ground in the endeavor to locate desirable land. One man reported that there were no fewer than 150 teams en route to the vicinity of the Lakeshore strike, some of them loaded well drilling materials.

Most of the land in the district was located prior to the withdrawal orders, and on much of it the assessment work has been done. These claims are being eagerly taken up by operators, and preparations are going forward to drill. The Associated Oil Company was among the first to get busy in the new field, and it has already sent out several teams loaded with drilling material. At least one ideal rig was sent out. As this is one of the heaviest rigs made it indicates that the Associated is not placing all its hopes on the shallow sand found by the Lakeshore.

The Devil's Den district is one of Kern county's oil fields, providing oil is found over the entire area now being prospected. It is about sixteen miles from the Coast range hills to the strike of the Lakeshore, and from the southeastern end of the district to the northwestern end is approximately forty miles. Lack of transportation has heretofore held it back.

Anxious for Oil.

The report is current in Los Angeles oil circles that the Associated Oil Company is anxious to secure oil, and is making overtures to different companies that are big producers and are not members of the Independent Agency. In one case it is known that W. S. Porter has written letters in the effort to make contracts for the delivery of oil. It is believed by many oil men that the situation is getting better all the time.

I make this statement so that you will know you consult a celebrated Specialist, who sees and treats patients personally. I possess skill and experience, acquired in such a way that no other can share, and should not be classed with medical companies. Experience is the safe standard by which judgment may be valued, and it is useless and expensive to embrace the statements of medical companies. It is impossible for a medical company to be a land college. Companies have no diplomas or license to practice medicine in California or any other State. Medical companies usually are named after a doctor. A portrait, whose personality and identity are indefinite, is selected and published as the legitimate specialist of the office. Hired substitutes, ordinary doctors with questionable ability, give consultation, examination and treatment.

A thorough investigation should be made by every ailing man so as to the specialist he consults. Duty and destiny to self and those who depend upon you demand the best medical attention. I make no misleading statements or unbusinesslike propositions; neither do I desire to be patronized by incompetent, and I would like to have you for a patient, if you will come to me as a strictly professional man, and the inducements that I offer, which are my ability and thirty years' successful experience, Time-Saving Treatment; and Guarantee Cure of certain Diseases cured to stay cured.

NO MONEY REQUIRED TO COMMENCE TREATMENT. $55 AN ACRE
COVINA, CALIF.

If you were offered $18 acres of the choicest land in Covina for $55 an acre, without water, would you buy it? We are offering what is without doubt the best purchase in the choicest orange district in California. 18 acres in Covina now in alfalfa, with 5-room plastered house, barn, windmill, tank and concrete cistern, properly all fenced, orange nursery stock, ready to set out for about 5 acres, under Azusa Irrigating System, which is accepted to be the best and cheapest water in that district. The value of the water alone is $225 per acre. When you take a conservative estimate of the improvements upon this land, together with the value of water and deduct it from the selling price, it leaves the cost of the bare land $55 an acre. FOR SALE—
SAN JACINTO IS BOOMING

Southern California will see this winter the biggest acreage BOOM it has ever known. They land, NOW, in the wonderful San Jacinto Valley and ARTESIAN BELT, the cheapest acreage, the finest soil (NO ALKALI OR ADOBE), with the greatest possibilities barring none in So. California today. The writer of this ad is an ACREAGE SPECIALIST, has ridden thousands of miles all over Southern California, and never before has he seen such marvelous soil, such a great territory of it, so uniform, so level (soil is a deep, rich dark loam, intermixed with decomposed granite, no sand.) WATER IS KING in this VALLEY, literally sprinkles with ARTESIAN WELLS; where a pump is necessary, lift only 15 or 20 feet. THE SAN JACINTO VALLEY is situated only 80 miles from the coast, and about 30 miles east and south of RIVERSIDE, and is entirely surrounded by mountains (NO WIND), only a little over three hours ride from here; jump on the Santa Fe any morning and take a run out there, we have an office on the ground and an automobile at your service. We have practically the whole valley listed, and can sell you from one acre up into the thousands. Small tracts with artesian water around $150 an acre up, large tracts magnificently located for the cutting up into small farms around $30 an acre up. This land is adapted for the raising of Oranges, Alfalfa, English Walnuts, deciduous fruits or most any kind of crops you can think of. You have heard about the fame of Orange county (the San Jacinto Valley beats it all hollow) COME TAKE A TRIP TO WONDERLAND. Soil, photographs, and free literature at this office. How would you like to grow an orange grove and never need worry about frost, smutt or scale; how would you like to own an alfalfa ranch, where after the first year you need only irrigate it twice a year and can get 6 tons cuttings of hay? You can do it in the WONDERFUL SAN JACINTO VALLEY AND ARTESIAN BELT. Fine market for anything you raise.

FOR SALE—30 acres, one mile north of the city of San Jacinto. Soil is a deep, rich clear loam, every foot of which is tillable land. 8 room California house, barn, outbuildings, 30 tons of hay, 2 horses and all farming implements go. 19 acres in fine stand of alfalfa, 1 acre grapes, 2 inch flowing well. Price only $3500 terms. This ranch if all set to alfalfa would be easily worth $10,000.

20 acres, here is positively one of the biggest snaps in the valley, inside city limits, not far from depot, all the finest kind of level land, great for alfalfa, good well and windmill, all fenced, price only $125 an acre, worth $200; will be worth $500 an acre inside of two years.

25 acres, all fine level tillable land, all fenced inside city limits of San Jacinto; seven hand cattle, lots of fine old cotton woods. Price only $4000.

20 acres, this is a cracker-jack and a great big snap. All level alfalfa land, every foot of which is tillable, all fenced, 5 room new plastered house, sheds, outbuildings, etc., 4 inch flowing well, flow 15 inches, enough to enough to force water through house and into reservoir. Water should not cost anything on this ranch; 8 acres cultivated, balance can be put into alfalfa with very little expense. This ranch will be worth $10,000, if all planted to alfalfa.

1000 acres, 4 miles west of Hemet, ALFALFA AND ORANGE LAND, 200 acres hill land, 800 acres all level tillable land; finest kind of deep, rich soil; 2 12-inch wells and 1 6½ inch well on this magnificent tract, water at 20 feet, land fenced in on corner. Here is an elegant subdivision proposition; will easily cut up and sell for $300 an acre right away. Very easy terms, long time. Price for all $85,000; price for the 800 acres $65 an acre. We are headquarters for all manner of San Jacinto Valley Farm land. SOLE AGENTS SEE H. D. PYLE AT WEBSTER & CROW'S OFFICE or the FARMER HOTEL, SAN JACINTO or ALLEN-PYLE REALTY CO., 15 So. And up per acre.

This property is located just beyond Huntington Park, and is only seven miles in all from the heart of Los Angeles, and the nearest offered at the prices in parcels of one acre or more.

Buyers receive a deed and title to this land on the terms of one-fourth cash, balance in three equal installments payable on or before one, two and three years.

The character of the soil (a rich sandy loam and easy to work) together with the fact that a substantial supply of good water is piped to each acre, makes it highly desirable for fruits, alfalfa, vegetables, poultry, etc.

We are making special terms to those who will build or improve immediately in a substantial manner. There are at the present time some fifteen dwellings either in the course of construction or just completed, and it is with the idea of assisting in a continuation of this building activity that we offer special terms to home builders. All told it is a safe estimate that there are some 225 to 250 completed dwellings upon this property.

If continued building activity, continuous sales and continuous general growth and improvement would have any influence upon your selection of a country home site or investment close to the city, it will pay you to investigate Cudahy Ranch Acres.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
For Sale.

WE ARE ABOUT TO ORGANIZE A COMpany for the purchase of 1400 acres of land in the heart of the artesian belt and alfalfa district in the San Jacinto Valley. This land is accepted to be the choicest large piece of acreage in that community with developed water, which has not been subdivided. The artesian wells now flowing are sufficient to irrigate about one-half the land and additional water can be developed to not only irrigate our entire holdings, but to sell water to the adjoining country, where they are unable to develop it upon their own land. This land lies perfectly for the raising of alfalfa. We will form a company for the purpose of developing the land and additional water and will ultimately offer it for sale in small tracts in the meantime receiving good profits from the alfalfa. We will solicit investments of $1000 or more and can show a person a substantial rate of interest during the period of development and large returns of profits from the sales. This is an opportunity for making a small fortune in lands at a wholesale price and receiving a profit which ordinarily goes to the large investors. It is an accepted fact that choice Southern California land with an abundance of water is as safe an investment as one can make. JAMES R. H. WAGNER-H. S. COOK, 329 S. Hill st., Los Angeles, Cal.

LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE.

Mexican Common Leads the Market Which Is Steady. Deadlock In Associated.

Mexican Common was the leader of the market yesterday, 250 shares changing hands, with the last transactions being made at the high mark of the day.

Palmer Oil occupied considerable time during the afternoon call, selling in hundred share lots 3, 5¼ and 6. Union Provident sold at the very low price of 95¼, but afterwards ran up to 97.

Cleveland and Consolidated Midway were conspicuous in the trades during the afternoon. A deadlock in the Associated issues prevented any sales, stock closing 43¼ bid at 44.

The rest of the list was without feature, being steady, but quiet.

Oppose Assessments.

Residents in the southwest district met in the First Christian Church on Budlong avenue Monday evening to protest against further assessments in that section for consummation of land for Agricultural Park and street openings. Ben F. Field, presided and spoke. Forceful figures showing the extra burden borne by the home builders of the district on account of assessments already made. Resolutions were passed opposing any further action by the city authorities for consummation of land near the park and a committee was appointed to attend a meeting of the Council as soon as a hearing can be arranged to support the protest, which, it was reported, contains nearly 1000 signatures.

Kruckeberg, editor of the Cultivator and president of the Kruckeberg Press at No. 321 Arroyo Drive. He was 79 years of age and was in the cabinet-making business at Pasadena. The remains were cremated in Mountain View Cemetery yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

CHANGE GRADE OF THE ROUTE.

CAMPAIGN FOR ALTERATION IN SANTA FE TRACKS.

City Council Takes Action as a Precautionary Movement for Safeguarding People—Brand-New Ordinance Lays Rather Heavy Duties on the Chief of Police.

(Office of The Times, 20 S. Raymond Ave.)

PASADENA, Oct. 4.—The City Council yesterday started the ball rolling as a precautionary movement for safeguarding the lives of the people by either compelling the Santa Fe railroad to lower its tracks inside the city limits so that the streets will pass over the tracks at the regular crossings or else change its route entirely and run around the main business portion of the city. The latter method would mean that the Santa Fe trains would turn east at Raymond Station in the northern limits of the city and follow its old right of way, joining the present main line at Glendora.

At present the tracks run directly through the principal business part of town, making many which are declared dangerous grade crossings. It is believed the old right of way will have a less grade and be cheaper to operate. It was decided yesterday to take the matter up with President Ripley of the road and endeavor to have either one of the other plan carried out.

HARD WORK FOR CHIEF.

The new ordinance went buzzing through the City Council yesterday morning. When it had completed its trip Chief of Police Wood found that he has a new task. Instead of spending his evenings visiting with his family and neighbors, he will have to attend all the moving picture shows, theaters, merry-go-rounds, Indian soap peddlers' shows and every sort of amusement that pays on the principle of each. If the chief discovers anything which the head of some Police Department thinks is "not nice" then such show will have to pull up stakes and leave town.

The ordinance was the outgrowth of the anti-gambling theater ordinance which failed to pass at that time. Mayor Harley suggested that a committee of three be appointed to be known as the "censor committee" whose duty it would be to pass on the quality of all shows. The committee of three dwindled down to one and the ordinance passed, although Councilman Mequereau offered strenuous objections on the ground that three heads are better than one. It is understood the large committee was dispensed with because there are few citizens who would pay for the job. It was argued that such cost would not be on the city's expense and to ask the theater managers to supply annual "complimentary tickets" was not considered good form. The police chief's badge of authority gives him "entree" to all such places.

PASADENA NEWS NOTES.

Promptly at 8 o'clock yesterday morning the "dirt" began to fly on the big new $250,000 Y.M.C.A. building. Mayor Earley, Willis Fry, Secretary Sams, McD. Snowball and other dignitaries "peeled" off their coats and got down close to nature. They picked and they shoveled and then the ground was broken for the new home. Following the ceremonies other soft hands grabbed the shovel handles each eager to have his name carved on the tablets of memory and soon the first wagonload of dirt was ready for the dump. The places of the "tin" workmen were soon replaced by sturdy hands and the work went merrily on never to stop until the great brick and stone building shall have been completed, which will be sometime before September 1, 1911.

Pasadena Methodists are happy. Every one of their old pastors has been returned to them for another year. When the Crown City "parsons" left for conference at Fresno each one carried near his bosom resolutions and earnest requests from his flock, signed by about every member, asking Bishop Hughes to return him to his charge. That the ear of the bishop was safely reached is proven by the fact that eight happy Methodist preachers are now journeying toward Pasadena.

The 200 New York bankers who have captured the Hotel Maryland, are having a gay time. The entire hostelry belongs to them and their friends, and they are making the best of it. Musicials, dances, concerts, theater parties and sight-seeing excursions are being planned for their amusement.

A notable fall wedding was that of Miss Elizabeth Tabor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tabor of Pasadena, and Ray C. Hill of Pomona, which took place at the Pasadena Presbyterian Church, last night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. F. Williams of the Bethesda Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles.

An "old people's" wedding, which will take place tonight, will unite Robert Collingwood, aged 72, and Mrs. Harriet Cole-Hughes, aged 66. The ceremony will be at the groom's home, No. 355 Kensington Place.

Mrs. Horace M. Dobbins and two daughters, the Misses Dorothy and Marjorie Dobbins, returned last night from an extended visit in Boston and the White Mountains.

GUN FIGHT ON STREET.

Men Who Exchange Shots With Officers Who Pursue Them Taken Into Custody.

After a running gun fight in which several shots were exchanged, Patrolman J. N. Brooke captured two Mexicans who gave their names as M. Larose and Jose Delgarde early yesterday morning, on North Main street near the Plaza.

When searched at the Central Police station seven watch fobs, one gold watch chain and five stick pins were found in their possession and they were locked up on a charge of burglary. It is believed that the men stole the articles in the pawnshop of A. Blanchard, No. 427 North San Pedro street. The shop was entered through a window.

Patrolman Brooke saw the men loitering on the street and questioned them. Instead of answering they started to run and the officer drew his revolver and followed them. The Mexicans turned and fired at the officer and he returned the shots but none of them took effect.

A few hours later A. Caruses, another Mexican, was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The police believe that he is involved with the other two in the robbery of the pawn shop.

A statement from the secretary says: "Every one of the fifty who have attempted to tell the contents of the letter has failed in every particular. Most of them begin with 'Dear James.' Since I have been in the spirit world, and the expressions used are similar to those of professional mediums since the days of the Fox sisters.

"None of the letters has the slightest trace of any expression used by Prof. James in his letter. There are references to various relatives of the professor, mostly inaccurate."
